COEDSA’s 1st PhriDay Series presents

Getting Published: Helping Tips for Writers

• Ever wondered how you can make a paper or proposal you wrote for a class into an article that may be ready for publication in a journal?
• Mired in doubts about whether your article is good enough for publication?
• Unable to take those first steps to send off that article you started writing months ago?

Come learn some helpful hints to get yourself published.

Dr. Dennis McDougall will share some tips on getting published, including:
  ▶ Top ten error patterns of beginning scholarly writers
  ▶ How to and how not to tick off journal editors and reviewers
  ▶ How to construct a cover letter when submitting manuscripts for review
  ▶ How to identify appropriate audience/journals

When: Friday April 4, 2008
Time: 5:00-7:00PM
Where: UHS3-133
(University High School Bldg 3, next to Wist Hall)

Dr. McDougall is a professor in the College of Education, Exceptionalities department.

This workshop is sponsored by the College of Education Doctoral Student Association (COEDSA). The 1st PhriDay Series gives COE doctoral students a chance to meet, network and listen to faculty, staff and students present information on topics of interest.
