Aloha,
To whom it may concern, Mauna Kea is one of the most sacred places in Hawaii. We have watched man take over nature time and time again. When the last tree is cut down, the last fish caught, and the last lake poisoned then will you realize that you can not eat money. As a Hawaiian we are connected to the ʻĀina. We have been stepped on, bulldozed, and oppressed long enough. If we can't make a stand on our own land then where can we do it? Please take into consideration that Mauna A Wakea is like a church or temple. We have compromised, 13 telescopes later. Enough is enough! Mahalo for your time and understanding!

Me me aloha,
Kehaulani Piiohia
