FOODBANK FUNDRAISING IDEAS!

Fundraising for the Hawaii Foodbank is easy and fun! Here are successful activities departments have organized in the past:

Bento and Plate Lunch Sales

Bento and plate lunch sales are by far, the most popular fundraisers. Here are some guidelines on organizing a successful one:

- Call your favorite takeout restaurant to request a menu and make your selection(s).

- If you are ordering takeout, decide on a dollar amount to add to each plate as your contribution to the Foodbank.

- If you are cooking the food, total the cost of the ingredients and decide on a dollar amount to add to each plate as your contribution to the Foodbank.

- Decide on a date for your fundraiser, where to distribute the food and who will pick up/serve.

- Create a flyer announcing the fundraiser and pre-order dates. Distribute it to as many of your co-workers as possible. Email your announcements as well.

- Accept pre-sale monies to cover the cost of your bento order or shopping list.

- Pick up or cook your plates and pay for them with monies collected from the pre-sale.

- The remaining monies from the dollar amount added to each plate will benefit the Foodbank!

Variations on this fundraiser include: chili bowls, beef stew, spaghetti and breakfast plates. Or a "Make Your Own" plate where co-workers can select from a variety of pot luck choices for a set price.
Bake Sale

Everyone loves dessert, especially after eating a ono bento or plate lunch! Bake sales raise the highest amount of contributions for the Foodbank since ingredients to make the desserts are donated.

- Decide on a date for your bake sale and where.
- Create a flyer announcing the bake sale and a last date for entries. Distribute it to as many of your co-workers as possible. Email your flyer as well.
- Sign up entries by name and type of dessert. Inform them what time baked goods need to be submitted.
- Allow yourself and all entrants to set up an hour before the sale. Determine prices based on the cost of the ingredients or make a determination based on your fundraising goal.

Variations on this fundraiser include: adding a food drive by collecting an entree fee from each contestant or an exciting contest with judges to determine first, second and third place awards.

White Elephant Sale

- Decide on a date for your sale and where.
- Create a flyer announcing the sale and a last date for donated items. Distribute it to as many of your co-workers as possible. Email your flyer as well.
- Allow yourself and all donors to set up an hour before the sale. Determine prices based on the current market value of the items or make a determination based on your fundraising goal.

Variations on this fundraiser include: book sale and online silent auction.
