

NEVER AGAIN SERIES

By R.J. RUMMEL

The six novels in this series are a what-if, alternative history. Two lovers are sent back in time to 1906 with modern weapons and 38 billion 1906 dollars. Their mission is to prevent the rise of fascism and communism, avert the major 20th Century wars, including World Wars I and II, and forestall such democides as those by Hitler, Stalin, Mao, and Pol Pot.

All books in the series are shown to the right.

Foremost, this series is character driven entertainment, filled with strong action, humor, pathos, high emotion, sex, conflict, and maybe even tears. There are a large number of docudramas in the books that provide a true background or context for the action and conflicts, such as Pol Pot's killing fields, the Chinese Cultural Revolution, the Holocaust, Stalin's starvation of the Ukraine, Turkey's genocide of the Armenians, Rwanda's genocide of the Tutsi, the Russian abortive 1905 communist uprising, the Battle of the Somme in World War I, the Vietnam War and defeat of the South and resulting communist transformation of the country, and finally the Boat People.

But, above all, these books are a story about love versus power -- the love of dedicated warriors for each other and for humanity and who risk their lives and each other in their deadly struggle against power, unaware that:

Unseen, loves dark foe
Power, like a deadly plague,
Infests, subverts, kills.

Rummel also wrote a nonfiction supplement, Never Again, the cover of which is shown to the right. It answers those questions that the novels might raise about democide and war, as well as provide a full and coherent argument for the democratic peace impossible in the novels. It is related to the novels only in that it deals with democracy, freedom, democide, and the democratic peace. It could as well be called a supplement to his website, blogs, or American foreign policy.
