

American Society for Microbiology- Hawaii Branch
Cordially invites you to attend the

ANNUAL FALL MEETING AND ASM BRANCH LECTURE

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 2009
@ 3660 on the Rise

“New Concepts on Antibody-mediated Immunity”

Arturo Casadevall, M.D., Ph.D.
Albert Einstein College of Medicine

This talk takes a historical view of antibody function and places it in the context of renaissance of studies on antibody function, which have revealed new mechanisms of action. The talk explains how antibodies are protective against intracellular pathogens, and takes a holistic view that attempts to integrate their action in the context of cell-mediated immune mechanism.
