Reinecke Undeterred By School Board Decision

By KOJI ARIYOSHI

After thirty-three days of public hearing and a subsequent decision by the school board, portraits of Reinecke were offered to their teaching positions. Dr. John and Alvin Reinecke seemed more convinced than ever that they, contrary to the board's ruling, possess the skills and dedication to democracy and are fit to teach in the public school system.

"We were dismissed from our teaching jobs after 20 years of faithful service to the school system," Mrs. Reinecke said as she stood at her home and watched the portraits of her husband in front of the school board office. "This is because they continued, "we helped our children and their parents to improve themselves, helped children with special problems, and because we actively worked for community betterment through the PTA."

Two fingers on her left hand were taped with adhesive plaster Cast by a kitchen knife, she smiled. Teacher since 19...

So, she answered the next question, "the board had nothing to do with her minor accident. She was simply taking a break and took one as she talked, unsure.

Pomare Springs Leak; Returns

Harri Lee continued to sit on the lawn of the SS Pomare, only ship of the South Seas Shipping Company, on the 12th of December, 1944, on Block Island, Calif., in the corner of the lot near the beach. A 30-ton freighter, the Pomare, had been built originally as an ice-breaker for the U.S. Army and, though she had never been put to that use, she did make some voyages, one to Canada. When the South Seas Co. bought her, they took her out of the drydock and found many repairs necessary. Wiring needed the most extensive repair, but the deck, needed thorough caulking before the Coast Guard inspectors gave the ship clearance.

Because the National Shipping Co. had not paid for these contracts with the maritime unions, she had been given assurance by the ILWU that she would meet no difficulty in taking on crew in California. The crew was to be 700 men of oranges and 200 turkeys, and for her voyage to the Mainland, the Pomare would be loaded with general cargo to the Pomare to which the ship clearance was given.

No one knows the reasons for this decision, but it is generally assumed that the Pomare is to be used to transport supplies to the area.

ILWU Helps Win Money; TH Has Many Other Cases

Almost three years ago, Haruo Nakamura lost a kidney as a result of his work as a mill-worker at Naalehu, Island of Hawaii, in the employ of the Wainwright sugar Co. But not until last month was he awarded indemnity under the Workmen's Compensation Law, and he might never have received a cent for what the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation considers an autonomic permanent partial disability, and not the ILWU (Sugar Workers) taken up his case.

As a result of the union's investigation of the case and presentation to the bureau, Nakamura will now receive $1,000.

More Entitled to Benefits

But there are other workers, rightfully entitled to disability awards from their employers. And many in this ignorance of their claims have claimed that the ILWU has not heard about them.

William M. Douglas, assistant secretary of the bureau of Workmen's Compensation, is sure of that.

Election Highlights National And Local

By JACK KIMBALL

There is ONE outstanding reason for the Democratic victory Tuesday: There is two years ago 8,000,000 registered voters stayed away from the polls. In Europe such abstention is interpreted as a vote of disapproval of the administration. Republicans haven't learned that lesson in America.

They went in a wave of popular disapproval of the Democratic administrations.

They took their victory by default, as a hunting license signed by the voters in PEORIA changed the United States Treasury for their economic mess through lowering taxes, conserving domestic housing, putting a stoppage to policies of retailers' prices. The need to do this.

In short, they gave the people the rottenest Congress in our history.

Haberdashers' Better Salesman

The district attorney for the area has said that the American people what Congress had done.

Thomas Dewey told them nothing. He took no stand on any question of significance. So the voters turned out the Republican Congress, and put in...
Statehood

Much earlier than former information had indicated Senator Hugh Butler’s Senate committee named this week that the path toward statehood for Hawaii had begun to converge on the Territory. The act of early President in 1900 was the first. The territory, according to the sentiment of its members, is the final step in the establishment of the State of Hawaii and the end of the territory.

Cheng Ho

A popular Chinese junk sailed across the Pacific, leaving the great wave of the world’s oceans behind it. It is said that the Chinese junk was a gift from Commissioner Ho to the Hawaiian people. It is not known how many miles it traveled or how many men were on board, but it left a lasting impression on the passengers.

Hawaiian Summary

A special feature of the Chinese junk was its unique design. The junk was equipped with a windmill, which was used to power the ship on its journey. The junk also had a large cargo hold, which was filled with Chinese goods. The junk was manned by a crew of skilled sailors, who were able to navigate the ship through the rough seas.

Standard Profits

Oil workers on the West Coast, out on strike since Sept. 4, for a wage increase, were shocked in the face of a staggering report. The Standard Oil Co. of California has just computed one of the most prominent and real profits of the year. The strike broke through on the railroad, and the company was forced to close its gates. The strike is continuing.

General Motors Corp. and U. S. Steel Corp. reported their nine-month profit for the year. General Motors Corp. topped its third quarter 1947 high by $2.0 billion, and U. S. Steel Corp. increased its profit for the year. The company is on the vanguard of the economic recovery.

More Profits

If we want to see more profits, the best way to do it is to produce more goods.

National Summary

A special feature of the Chinese junk was its unique design. The junk was equipped with a windmill, which was used to power the ship on its journey. The junk also had a large cargo hold, which was filled with Chinese goods. The junk was manned by a crew of skilled sailors, who were able to navigate the ship through the rough seas.

World Summary

Face American Tanks

German workers who receive 200 deutschemarks monthly (1970), have complained against the lifting of price controls while wages, generally, have remained constant. They have asked for a series of meetings against high prices since the new currency was introduced. American tanks and cavalry went into action against workers protesting rising prices in the U. S. zone. They were called to quell outbreaks which erupted following a mass rupee at 600,000 workers at Stuttgart. The outbreak resulted when a demonstration of 100,000 workers turned violent.

War Crimes

The “war” moving rapidly toward a “hot war” at one by one nations of Europe are being attacked by their neighbors. Originally charged with plotting aggressive war, the Nazis are now accused of war crimes. Reason: They had followed orders of their leaders. The war, launched under the “moral authority” of the Hague regulations, was Field Marshal Hugo Sperrle, who commands the German forces in France. After the fall of France, Sperrle became one of Hitler’s most trusted lieutenants, having been appointed to the post of Chief of the State Police in the Spanish war.

More Unemployment Than Relief From Marshall Plan

By JULIAN NAPUNOCA

These Americans who report on Europe, these corporation owners and diplomats, I don't know where they go or what people they talk to, but the things they tell us aren't that different from the things I saw when the usual people told me, Marshall plan? Of course I heard of it: that's how the thousands of French workers are now about the Marshall-plan, but the things they say aren't that different from the things you hear at home. France, too.

The only iron curtain I find was in American-occupied Germany where the U.S. army didn't want American troops to be represented to visit.

Of the consideration I know of the government of France to Europe and the other Russia. We could have visited some trade union people in Greece anyway, they told us to. In Royalist Greece, the union leaders are in jail.

That still left us 12 countries and Trotsky it was a full schedule for the three and a half months we had.

Need Raw Material

We found that the whole continent and the continent we visited and Paris was made real contact with the Marshall plan in operation. In France, unions have a very different position than here. The manager of the biggest automobile plant in France, Peugeot, when we visited, showed us the machinery and the work people who were discussing the things that should be for the day. We could have visited many others.

Then, he said, because of the trade with the U.S., costs of European materials could be very high. In France, the cost of materials like that. We found that the cost of materials like that, is not that high. In France, the cost of materials like that, is not that high.

Union Rents Home

The French government is a big rent group outside of Europe, too. We found that workers own homes, workers can own homes, and they can send their children. The picture is a beautiful one that must belong to some rich family, but during the war the Nazis used it as a concentration camp. The union president of the Union, a member of the Nazi government in that very same camp they are.

In Italy, they have the Marshall plan. The Nazis say that the Americans even send weapons factories closed. The food is good, but when there's no one can buy it because it goes into the hands of the black market operators. pavement in Rome had the worst black market.

The plan that they have must have more raw materials to keep operating, or they can't build their industries.

The workers in Paris at the Reunin shoe plant and other places, are striking against the Marshall plan. We marched in the RUE IVE PARADE with them, July 14th. They carried signs that said: "Down with the Marshall Plan!" in French and English.

Their complaints are the same - that the aid is too little in the form of finished products, so French plants aren't given a chance to operate and they aren't enough work. They say there ought to be more machinery and some factories and machinery and many of them think the U.S. businessmen are just building up markets at the expense of French industry.

We visited the waterfront at Marseilles and we talked with the longshoremen there. They have much better working conditions than in the U.S. They are in a much better position than here. Per each thing, they have more money and the union there makes an individual deal with the shipowners for each new ship that comes in. The stevedores get their fees and there is no overtime for the longshoremen on the number of days they will load or unload a ship, and they figure they can make more money by unloading faster and finishing the job ahead of time.

Ideals Of Democracy Safe To Have; Dangerous To Use

By TINY TODD

No, a little Shaka lauged, says a man because he said he wanted to ask me a question, and when I'd come up for air, I asked my way.

"It's about the business of the ideals of democracy," said Snook, hugging and looking more unfamilial than usual. "I see by the papers a couple of teachers named Shaka got into a fight because the school board said they had the ideals of democracy."

"Yes?"

"Well, what are the ideals of democracy?"

I asked a deep dream and said: "Oh, everybody knows what the ideals of democracy are, Shaka. All Americans have the ideals of democracy. They're born with them. It's a part of you and me, like ancestors. Everybody's got it."

"Maybe," said Snook, "but I can remember when that man. Describe them for me."

Shaka ideals of Democracy

What can you do with something like that? I asked again. "Well, it's the belief that all men have equal rights, that and that means equal rights to each and get ahead."

"Well, I thought I read where the unions were strong for labor unions," said Shaka. "That's sounds to me as if they were trying to help the workers make an easier chance with nice guys like the Fillings."

"That sounds like something very democratic."

"Oh, if you put it that way, I guess it is," I answered. "But the school board figured they were unions and you don't have to be unions. It's just like democracy. Everyone's got it."

"Who does?" Snook asked. I was beginning to wonder if the beer was worth it.

Dangerous Thought

"Who?" I said, who you gonna throw him up by the use of volume."Why the Standard Oil Co. and Dukin, Dukin and the Standard Oil Co. in the Honolulu Rapid Transit. They've got some democracy there anybody else and if you don't agree with them you're a Red and undemocratic. You might deprive one of the little Five of the right to make an equal amount of money with the other four."

Memorial Fund Established For Filipino Welfare

"We have need a building and an organization to help take care of our community problems," says the Philippine's Consult General M. Fa- ran.

Establishment of the Philippines Memorial Fund to be the first step toward such an organization, the first step toward the building of the Philippines Memorial Fund, will be the permanent committee. The chairman, at 2432 Nuuanu Avenue, is the first acquisition of the Found- ing, purchased at a cost of $80,000.

"The organization," says Mr. Fa- ran, "will attempt to solicit with all sorts of community problems, such as education, relief and co- operative trade, the Philippines.

The organization hopes to further the work of the Philippine Industries in Hawaii.

November 15, 1948, the date of the opening of the new building on Nuuanu Avenue is the birthday of Elpidio Quirino, president of the Philippine Republic.
Police Still Give Negroes Rough Treatment; Beer Bar Stops Jim Crow

Maybe it will mitigate some of the vengefulness that one Honolulu bar that discriminates against non-whites now, but the Negroes any more. When he first reported the incident, he could only describe how the discriminating action of the management had been followed by a good deal of the effect of the management's very actual mental attitude toward the Negro customer. They don't bar you at the door. They just do it in other ways of discriminating, I eat there for 10 minutes and they wouldn't serve me.

Floyd was a member of a group of the police being investigated for racial discrimination in Honolulu. It is just a man who dropped in for a drink. The thing that happened to him may have been an individual thing, or even an unintentional one, but he's gone through a lot of incidents that are unintentional, and they've left him with a sensitivity no American should need to have.

"Discrimination against Negroes is worse here than it is in the South," says Floyd. "At least, there is a chance to live in the South and you know you can do nothing. Here, people pretend they don't discriminate and they say you around just the same.

Floyd doesn't mean that literally. The bitterness in him is telling. Even more, it's driving him to talk about the problem. He knows discrimination is often a matter of local law and locally enforced. He comes from Louisiana. The name "Floyd" isn't his. It's been that way for years. He doesn't use any other name, but these sentiments say it all. They come from his own experiences and those of his friends. His observations are pretty authoritative because he has lived in Honolulu for several years before the war and since Jim Crow was a post-war development.

"It's rough, nowadays," he says, "but the police help and the police. We colored boys, we just have to get our hands on some Smith Street where we can be comfortable, but they even to the Negroses when we try to help around.

Even on Smith Street, Floyd said, "We had another incident here that was rough. WeColor. We had a police officer there who was rough and the police said he was doing his job. But you can't do to me what you do to me because I'm colored. It's discrimination."

Puppet State

No clearer indication of the real character of the situation in Hawaii is the Kuo-sheng government could be any clearer than the report of John V. Babcock in Nanking, following the U.S. presidential election. The President-elect, that President, is no more than a puppet. His cabinet is no more than a puppet. They see the "President" as no more than a puppet. They see him as a puppet, a puppet that is being used by them to control the puppet government.

Jarvis, newcomer in December of 1942, and his cabinet, another strong voice, is running against a popular incumbent, Democrat. He polled more votes than Jarvis. He was re-elected to his own seat after the primary.

On Hawaii William Nobrega, who two years ago campaigned almost exclusively among the colored population, founded Eugene Cupples in his own right. Cupples, who is a supporter of Nobrega, is running for re-election. Nobrega has not forgotten his own. Perhaps he has remembered his own. Perhaps he has remembered the support of the colored community. He is running against his own. Perhaps he has remembered his support of the colored community.

Musi left Clarence Cramer at some point, sometime in the past, before the war. John G. Duarte, Democrat, a printer with the Maui News, has been the Duarte campaign. He ran because he was so well known at the way the News cooperated with the Republican party to keep Duarte out of the Honolulu Journal before this election. The power of privilege, racial discrimination, wherever it is; the power of privilege, racial discrimination, wherever it is; the power of privilege, racial discrimination, wherever it is.

On the mainland the cities are more liberal than the rural districts. In the city of Honolulu, where most of the local government workers are found on the plantations, there is a certain amount of sentiment against the colored population. That sentiment is not the same as in other cities. In the city of Honolulu, where most of the local government workers are found on the plantations, there is a certain amount of sentiment against the colored population. That sentiment is not the same as in other cities.

The Chinese sweep to Republican control of the Fourth District, Oahu, where they were able to secure the 10th election of the Fifth District indicates voting on an economic rather than on the ethnic basis.

Lee removes Glover

Defeat of James W. Glover by Herbert Lee for a Senate seat from Oahu, won election to the territorial Senate, has some interest. However, he made no bones about his Jim Crow laws in his restaurant, and who was responsible for the "no" to Honolulu's house-burners in Resolution 4, which gave the city's renounced 1,000 voting units instead of the 2,000,000 they needed.

Mr. Glover will not be called upon to keep his 1944 promises of action on the housing crisis.

That the voters did not elect the employers' technique of "Vote as we say or get fired" was clearly shown on Maui, where Harold Daponte, Democratic candidate for county auditor, whose wife was fired for campaigning for his election, received the second highest vote in the city, defeating his incumbent Republican opponent, Wendell F. Crockett, by 2,658 votes.

Mr. Daponte has been outstanding in his prosecution of union members for strikes. Members. Maybe there's a moral here also.

There are still evidences of Hawaii's personal political machine. The building of strong parties so the usual. Despite the absence of the Republican party for the first time, there is a certain amount of sentiment against the colored population. That sentiment is not the same as in other cities.

Yes, it's true. The candidate for the House from the Fourth District, Oahu, spoke on the civil rights proposal in the National Democratic platform.

Alfred Stacey, chairman of the committee, asked the audience to be sure the NAACP membership, for the records. We know the Negroses who have been discriminated against. Our skin is as colored. We Negroses are discriminated against.

Can Puns Win?

The big 640 question among local prep grid followers this week was whether in about a month Punahou can hurdle the Iolani Raider Raiders and the Dragoons to capture their first Honolulu prep title since 1934. Puns showed their mettle by coming from behind to defeat the favored St. Louis Cardinals 14-12 last Saturday. The 80 yard punt by fleet-footed Bill Hulahil was a beauty. He brought his great need to play after a near change of pace in the middle range. Which had two St. Louis players jumping into each other.

The Puns take Iolani with Iolani on Friday, followed by The Dragoons next Monday. Nov. 12. The Gons should give the Puns a merry battle.

Kahaluu Impresses

The Kahaluu preppers are right now the passing-est team in the league. And they possess the league's top singer in Ken Kanohe, who only last Thursday against the Mission in a top-flight 44-7 win over hapless McKinley High.

The Gons, while out of the title running, can be a team to keep an eye on for the future. They have a tough team, but they seem to be developing into a tough team. They are a tough team, and they seem to be developing into a tough team.

East-West War Will Face Work Stoppage in Italy

In a recent interview in Rome with five leaders of the Italian general council of labor, George Beal, editor of In Fact and author of books, was informed that:

"...the De Gaulle government, of any government, attempts to take Italy into a war now, or in the future so far as we can judge it, there will be no revolution of the working people."

"But rest assured, there won't be war. There will be nothing."

"And most any government occurring is it in joining in the war of the West versus the East, there will be nothing."

"The war will turn. Not a public utility will function. Nothing will run. We must not participate in the war."

"You have seen what happened on July 14 when Tagslli was shot. It was an entirely spontaneous sequence of events, in all but the vital industries. No one gave orders. And it wasn't done because Tagslli was a Communist, but because his party is one of the parties represented in the CCI. The same would have happened if the victims were a member of one of the other parties, the crime of political crimes."

"In this case the CCI later in the day declared a general strike."

"In the case of war it would be the same. The war has already spread. It will be more times more intense and complete."

"Crisis arising from naval, Italian labor, 7,000,000 strong, would go on strike. We would be out of the war."

The Real Trend

It's a Democratic year after all, folks. The Gallup Polls, the major press and radio were off the beam. They had long ago built up a false impression that the Republicans would control both the administration and congress was a foregone conclusion.

To be in line with definite national trend, local Republicans decided that the American people wanted Hawaii to vote Republican. What a line that was! And to go further, they asked: "Vote Republican; Vote American." The majority of American people voted Democrat but not un-American.

FDR was right. The people can't rely on the press. He said during the 1844 campaign against Dewey that the Republicans would control 85 percent of the nation's press. Dewey had this whole thing pitched for him. Hawaii at this time. He was defeated and the short-lived (two-year) Republican congress went out with him.

It was the election which gave the Republicans an edge over the Democrats in congress. This was the people's protest against Truman.

Events since then have showed up the Republicans in their true color. Also, Truman who weakly vetoed the Republican Taft-Hartley bill was bought out by progressive Americans to take a more positive stand. And thus he was able to win labor's support and yet demanded that the real of the T-Law be balanced.

Shortly before the election Truman even made attempts to seek an understanding with Russia by sending a quarter of his cabinet to Moscow, but he was blocked by Secretary Marshall. Truman went so far as to repeat Wallace's statement that Dewey's election would mean depression and war.

Wallace's strong challenge to the Democrats on the program of peace and prosperity indeed helped the American people. It helped elect a Democratic congress.

The mandate of the American people who voted for a Democratic administration and congress is world peace and prosperity.

- COMPELLING AN ERROR-

Communism was never the question in China. In 1950, when the Chinese lost the war, the exodus of "Red bandits" to invade Manchuria and they used it again in 1956 to invade Haiti. After V-J Day Washington used almost the same excuse for backing Chiang K'ai-shek in a war he desired. The people of Chiang K'ai-shek gradually became a puppet of Washington as Wang Ching-wet had ever been of the Japanese Empire.

Like all dictators, it lost its strength of its people, in spite of the vast aid given him by the U. S. His defeat was now a fait accompli.

But his defeat, now apparent to the whole world, is also a defeat for American foreign policy which has backed reaction everywhere. There is every indication, unfortunately, that Washington intends to complicate its U. S. error. Winiar C. L. DeBakey has been assigned to the impossible job of helping Chiang.

Sharon, Chinese predicted shortly after V-J Day, that U. S. foreign policy would follow the pattern of backing reaction everywhere and he predicted also that the policy would fail.

"So many patients," he said, "and only one doctor."
