House Is Sample
Of How GOP Sees
Two-Party System

By KICHI WATANABE

Throughout the entire island, Paauilo, in a magnanimous decision to allow a few elected democratic representatives to serve on several of the committees of the Republican watch, is still red hot, and several legislators of the majority in the House follows one pattern and that is to "burn" the Democ- ratic. The ads speak of the Republican's aspirations to be in the "hot-shot" part of the last campaign—have no party or propose one party to give orders and the other to obey these orders.

Today's floor of the Republican is filled with a small group of minority leaders, drawn up by Democratic leaders, who take the Republican to task for their method of working minority representatives on committees. In a letter to the Republican, the Democratic leaders claim that "far too many" Republican minority representatives do not represent the community, that their group is "so many in the community" that it is not the Republican to be commenting on what they are doing, nor is the Republican to be the one who has broken the ground, nor is the Republican to be the one to see you." The Republican has once again to clear the floor in the field of legislation in this city. The Republican's group is so small that it was the Republican who had been pushing the plan.

Last week, Mr. Bush announced his major appropriation of $6,000,000 would be fought for the construction of a small harbor, and a start on the construction of a man-made island opposite Ala Moana park.

The project was required 1,000 cubic yards of sand.

Speaking in his capacity with the construction and drayage companies, Mr. Bush asked for a $20,000,000 appropriation for the construction of a small harbor, and a start on the construction of a man-made island opposite Ala Moana park.

A check for $8,000,000 was recently deposited in the Bank of Hawaii by L. W. Dungan, governor of the Farmers Credit Administration, a division of the Farmers Home Administration, for the payment of the entire amount of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. This brought the total annual dividend paid since the beginning of the program to $8,000,000. The Corporation was organized in 1933 to finance farm mortgage indebtedness. In the 14 years of the lending period it has insured 13 billion dollars to about 785,000 farmers on the security of their farm mortgages.

The corporation was an important factor in stimulating the economy of farm mortgage foreclosure.

The above is a call for redemption of mortgage bonds.

The $750 million of the corporation, with the exception of $15,000,000, has already been returned to the Treasury. The bonds that are paid in full prior to maturity during the fiscal year end, and another $1,000,000 were purchased by the Federal land banks for $1,000,000.

All of the corporation's bonds have been called for redemption. Loans outstanding, after providing for reserves, totaled $35 million at the end of this calendar year.

National Summary

The American government was reportedly concerned about the Chinese involvement in the Korean war. The article discusses the tension between the United States and China, as the latter was providing significant military support to North Korea. The article mentions the United Nations Security Council's resolution, which was aimed at ending the war.

Large George Gets Lesson
In Newspaper Objectivity

BY TINY DOOD

So when this Archie came up to sit at my desk I knew there'd be an argument. He had, I noticed, a university and soon or later he would always say something that was boorish. I was in a mood of burn all the time, I don't talk to him. But the rest was happy to see that he was in a very friendly manner.

And what do they teach in the institutions of education nowadays? said Archie.

"Objectivity," I said.

"Objectivity," said Archie. "They teach to us to take the dusted vision out of our view and all sides of a question equally. Then we are quite to make a fair and clear decision.

"George, his smile disappeared and he looked at me with a, "What questions?" He asked.

"Yes, that is the case," said Archie. "In our minds, we only consider the authorities who write calmly and carefully. Like the West Coast maritime strike, we-

"What opinion have you ever put on your information?" I asked.

"Objective" Papers

"The Star," said Archie, "is a paper to us. And the New York Times is, a couple of our words. We thought.

"You mean you thought they SOUNDED too much anti-labor," George said.

"You mean you thought they HAD BILLION Dollar News," I said.

"You mean the New York Times and the Chronicle are both big business organisations," Archie prompted.

"We write different stories in a calm and impersonal manner," Archie profited.

"Of course not," said Archie. "There is still the same thing as he said. Hears. Did you refer only to the newspapers or the Voice?" asked George.

"Of course not," said Archie. "What about the newspapers you find that labor unions are to be blamed for strike strikers? You were ever on strike, your-

"Why no, but-" Archie began.

No Strikers By Choice

"No one should blame them for the experience of living out of sour-pillows, I've seen it happen. Sometimes, with the help of a boss, the company has to do anything else. It can be by pushing the workers into putting their own litigation, but no one strikes because they are not interested.

Archie waved his hand in a sort of confusion over his story. It was new, that doesn't sound very objective. We mustn't set up an emotional or illogical fight.

George placed at his moment on the same paper. I say, "Give the public a good punch in the nose?" I asked.

"Oh", said Archie, looming alarmingly. "Impersonal or impartial either.

"But you don't want a punch on the face, do you?" George asked.

"To the idea of research, we shouldn't. I don't think you give a punch on the nose. It's the public that nobody anybody anybody else, too, now, anywhere. It's not all right to have any dish.

Good, maybe that's taking the English too far, Archie said.

"Strike up and walk a few steps, know in the pocket, and Archie was quiet for a long time. It was about, I was thinking about.

"It was just wondering what Dr. Marter would say," Archie sighed.

CITY'S ONLY CO-OP STORE

has been put into building the co-op store.

There are still some members who are not ready to buy, because they do not know of the numerous improvements that have been made inside the store.

Key to Successful Co-op

A key to a successful co-op movement would be the interest of Arthur Darien, G. & Co. official who helped co-ops in co-ops on the mainland, and Ernest Inabnats, manager of the Palola Co-op.

Both said that the co-op grew slowly. There is no money or time available for an educational program to the advantage of the cooperative before abandoning.

A few people from scattered areas are trying to help in the effort to shop at the co-op be-

Because, they don't know how to move, though they receive no help from that.

In explaining the functions of a "buying club" from which the co-op grew slowly, they described how the co-op grew slowly, they described how the co-op grew slowly.

"During the depression years in the United States, here and there people learned to work in groups to purchase food and groceries.

"As a small surplus was accumulated in time before they were ready or able to handle the venture in a business manner.

"The Palolo Co-op started from just this kind of venture, but it is shaping up now. In their initial membership review, co-op members are now canvass-able through the Oakland source purchased through local wholesale sales.

Stress Needs

In connection with expansion of education, I was informed by the Director of the Cooperative, that in a limited way has been conducted through local gatherings and meetings of the membership. The Director also mentioned, that he has been working on educational projects, and added.

The Palolo Co-op has at present no better objectives than the promotion of sales in the local neighborhood market. Judging by the directness of both comments and suggestions, there is every reason to believe that it will make the goods.

American manufacturing industries in December saw the highest increase in capacity of hiring of any month since the depression. As a result, the issue was made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

By BETTY ESHELMAN

Pot is an item in the diet of many Kona residents and for probably their first solid food.

The pot manufacturer's contract (oral, verbal) with the planters and advanced the former group a royalty fee of five cents per ton. The contract also included a guarantee of a minimum of 50 pounds of poi per gallon.

The suit was filed in District Court and is pending.

The three varieties of dry land kalo were used: Kona, Kona, and Kaunia. Each variety was grown in the same field. The results were:

1. Kona: 50 pounds per gallon
2. Kona: 40 pounds per gallon
3. Kaunia: 30 pounds per gallon

Labor Roundup

To Conduct Strike Vote

The labor picture this week was dominated by the ILWU strike against the sugar industry. The union, under the leadership of longshore workers, is asking another in the sugar industry.

In the past year, the number of hours lost due to strikes by the longshore workers has increased by 400,000 man-hours. This increase is due to the high cost of living and the struggle for better working conditions.

Island Workers Paid Nearly Double

Island workers are now paid $2.14 per hour, due to the strike for better conditions in the sugar industry.

Sugar Unions Ask Wage Increase

On the sugar front, representatives of ILWU Local 142 Sugar Workers' Committee, citing six reasons, asked for wage increases of 10 cents to 14 cents for 12 cents from 22 plants in letters posted Monday.

Strike Causes Wage Increases

Wage increases have been negotiated for the present agreement which calls for wage reopenings on April 30 and December 31, 1947.

No Wage Increase Since 1937

No wage increase has been given since 1937 and there has been no change in wage levels for the past four years.

Cutting the Work Week

Cutting the work week from 48 hours to 40 hours has been proposed by the unions.

I'FW-HGEA Differ Over Firemen

Differing in their views over the firemen's pension plan, the International Federation of the Commtworkers and the Hawaiian Government Employes' Union have been discussing a new pension plan with the ILWU.

HGEA President Suggests Changes

The HGEA president suggested changes in the pension plan that would be more beneficial to the employees.

By ALLAN BEKMAN

A. F. of L.- affiliated labor unions in Hawaii have presented a display of dolls in their homes. The dolls have been presented to their union to highlight the significance of Doll Day. When first confronted with them, it was apparent that they stood before the platform on which the display was mounted, and displayed, Mr. R. A. A. the university, had resigned to become chairman of the committee, which was organized in the state of Hawaii only a short time before.

"I went alone to see Mr. Fujii- moto, and Mrs. Fukuhara, and I talked to them and gave him a letter from the State Committee, but he would not accept it. He said he would not make the speech because it was too late to make the speech. That's not true," the student said.

As soon as she turned the microphone on, the student said, "I was surprised and hurt, but she finished her speech. When she finished, she received a standing ovation. The title was, "A Few Things You Don't Know About America."

"But everyone gets up, she said negatively.

One Side Is "Hopeless"*

Then she said, "I didn't intend to make a pro-Communist speech, but I just wanted to have some ability to have some say about the whole situation."

*From the report of various teachers who had called to ask Miss Fukuhara to keep her side of the argument, she might have had in preparing.

"I think they were scared," she said.

After all, they're responsible for us, she said."

Much later a Mrs. Fukuhara, when she heard the report of the Committee, she asked questions about her speech, the aftermath and asked whether the teachers who had called to help her might have had in preparing."
KAIUMI RED HERRING
The reaction of the school commissioners to the speech given by a Kaimuki high school girl clearly indicates the trend of the times, a dangerous trend of trying to hide behind juggling the thinking of the people and of punishing those who do not conform. The mere fact that the student's five-minute criticism of Commissioner chairmen that took to the school commission and the public school system along with it is significant. The speech was delivered last November in a context, and the investigation was carried on by school authorities in a hush-hush manner.

In the beginning, the students themselves thought lightly of the excitement of the adults and the investigation the latter carried on. As this continued for several sessions, the student began thinking and realizing the importance of the freedoms our society is supposed to guarantee individuals. Some, more easily intimidated, became afraid. Others questioned the propriety of the school authorities' actions. And not a few among the students began to think highly of the courage of the student who had taken the side of Communism.

This student who delivered the speech chose the subject of Communism because she felt that it would be interesting to take the opposite point of view, and not necessarily because she agreed with it. Hercules was not attached to it. This came out clearly when she was later lured into a trap by the investigator.

One of the teachers who was called before the school commissioners said she had found a solution for wiping out the thinking of the students. But she gave a student book after book to read, all against non-conforming ideas. And this works, she said enthusiastically, on college students. But it never works on students. But can we know how many prejudices this teacher has, or how narrow her thinking is?

This teacher's methods—there may be more like her in times like these when teachers also are intimidated—virtually draw the iron curtain of censorship that has been raised off academic inquiry. This teacher should realize that students learn not only from books but from life itself. The hush-hush investigation, for instance, started these thinkings. One Kaimuki student, after reading the newspapers, saw the relationship between the US occupation and the school students. He went to Hawaii and the "well-timed" release of the news stories of the Kaimuki school investigation. This student saw all this as a struggle of the students for acceptance of the un-American Committee here.

People of Hawaii are told the un-American Committee will investigate Communism. Communism is not the problem in Hawaii. Our problems are growing unemploying, etc., and the improvement of school facilities and the meeting of the minimum needs of the people.

The purpose of an un-American Committee is all too clear. It is to distract people's attention from their grave problems, while in the name of anti-Communism we are losing interest. It will try to crush unions and other organizations which consistently fight for the best interest of the people.

On the other hand, the Star-Bulletin is now ready to state, that it is a newspaper, and these gentlemen mentioned, as the heads of Big Business, have done nothing of a tangible or an agreement form to put into the principles into operation, and to their virtues.

The Star-Bulletin knows, and when we say the Star-Bulletin we mean the men and women who compose this publishing organization as editors, reporters, printers, and in every capacity, that these wildly flying charges are tendentious and meaningless.

The Star-Bulletin believes that the time has come to cast a look at the state of affairs in Fairbanks and in the rest of the country. It is time that the race of the terms "Communist" and "Fellow Traveler" be stricken out of the face of our Constitution and the real menace to the safety of our democracy.

The Star-Bulletin believes that the writers of these letters from men such as Senator Tenney of California, who gave the dignity of the Senate to un-American and "fellow travelers," should be held responsible charges against our citizens in the slimy method of unfounded statements.

The Star-Bulletin desires the support given this investigating committee. I am for non-partisan and non-partisan every one in the Committee. They are chargers against our citizens in the slimy method of unfounded statements.

The Star-Bulletin desires the support of the investigating committee. I am for non-partisan and non-partisan in the first place, and secondly.

The Star-Bulletin hopes to be the support given this investigating committee. I am for non-partisan and non-partisan in the first place, and secondly.

The Star-Bulletin hopes to be the support given this investigating committee. I am for non-partisan and non-partisan in the first place, and secondly.
