Filipinos Here Deprived

of Dependency Aids Due

Discriminatory Law Voids Benefits Promised Earlier

Do the children of an alien get as hungry as those of an American citizen? Under the present Workmen’s Compensation Law, territorial courts are forced to rule that, however or not, the children of an alien may not receive the death benefits that otherwise might be awarded because of the death of their father, unless they lived in the United States.

Among certain groups of Filipinos working in the United States, a special concern is expressed over Article 4 of the law, which provides that the law applies only to those whose primary place of business is in the United States. A few who have not received payments from other countries, in which their primary place of business is located, have become casualties, and no benefits have been paid. A new law is needed which provides a uniform system of benefits for all workers, regardless of their primary place of business.
Mystery Death

Hawaii's "mystery deaths" got an explanation but it seemed unnecessary and not good enough to local physicians who have been closest to the scene and working hard to solve the unexplained deaths.

Dr. C. Manning of the Philippine department of health, who studied the "mystery deaths" here, gave full meals before bedtime and nightmares as causes of death.

"Psychological or functional lung hemorrhage due to a nightmare, out of a chain of internal reactions which kill the sleeper," he said.

Honolulu physicians recently met with Dr. Manning, voiced disagreement. Some said much more study is necessary before final conclusion as death could be.

Another said: "My understanding at the scene of the accident was that we had not yet determined the cause of death."

Malayan Parasites

During the war, the sapperjacketed land mines, all we discovered that Malayan parasites have been sapped, probably even before human beings found this task necessary.

The imported insect sappers are taking part in the territorial forest of forestry and agriculture campaigns against the Oriental fruit fly. With long, wing-like leg-representation, typically found among them, the parasites are warped by their sounding

Campaign Speeches

The Democratic candidates started their primary campaign on Sunday at two places - Kahului and Waimanalo. Twenty-seven candidates, including 14 with Mrs. Victoria K. Hatt, candidate for delegate to Congress, met at the Kahului meeting. She did not speak to the candidates and was elected without a debate. Mayor John H. Wilson stood firm and spoke on issues, ignoring the red herring which could collide away at party solidarity.

U. S. Leo (AIA 60) instead of using union longshoremen who had been standing by ready to unload the cargo. In a letter to Union Secretary Rourke, Dusty pointed out that "there's no sympathy for the workers employed at the jetties longshoremen.

No one has yet suggested replacing the surf-up ships with either Army or Navy personnel.

Hood River Learns

At Hood River, Ore., they once struck the name of police from an honor roll by action of the American Legion. Last week, they were the first to lead the civil defense Council, the town turned out to honor Priest's reputation, reelected for a million-dollar general fund. Among the bronze-nail bearers was the Rev. W. Marley, since the failure of the first plan, one of those who were ready to work whenever the Americans were.

The U. S. and the Southern Republic of Korea, the government established and sponsored by the U. S. Army, have agreed that the withdrawal of American troops will be made gradually as the Republic increases the strength of its army. This is the word says U. S. Army officers began to organize, trains and arms shortly after V. J. Day, when there was still no Korean government. Critics of U. S. policy have pointed out that such mobilization of the officers and men of that army were puppet-soldiers of the Japaese.
LABOR ROUNDTOP

PUBLIC ASKS ARBITRATION

Growing public pressure for arbitration of the two-week-old strike of the Transit Workers Union (Ind.) against the Honolulu Rapid Trans- mission Corp. is increasing. In a letter to the Honolulu Board of Commerce, more than 10,000 persons have signed the petitions calling for settlement.

This pressure has risen following the rejection by the company of the union’s proposal for a conversion of the company’s last 300 men, in a race meeting held on a railroad line north of Honolulu, to form an arbitration panel and to make recommendations previously agreed to by both parties as a basis for settlement.

Meanwhile, the union has thrown out another proposal—on this occasion for a conversion of the company’s last 300 men, in a race meeting held on a railroad line north of Honolulu, to form an arbitration panel and to make recommendations previously agreed to by both parties as a basis for settlement.

COCA-COLA STATEMENT

The situation at the Coca-Cola plant remains the same, with a settlement in sight.

At the Coca-Cola plant, the strike continued.

LOVE’S STAND PAT

On the waterfront, the ILWU Local 210 report that there is still no settlement of the strike between the foremen and the union.

At the same time, the company has announced that it will not close down the plant, saying that it needs the workers.

SUGAR NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations between the ILWU Local 312 and the C&I Sugar Co. continue, with the latest session of the recently negotiated agreement, which had been postponed until September 24, being reported by both sides.

Negotiations, which resumed, will take place on the Big Island.

MARSHEL FENG

WANTED PEACE.

By Walter Warner

Wang Yü-hsiang, China’s “Chiang T’ang,” reported dead recently by the Great Eastern brewing company, is said to have been killed in a confrontation between his forces and those of Chiang K’ai-shek. The company denies this.

A new type of general, he rose to command and then to be deposed. He was a man born into a peasant background.

Reconstruction and Peace

The plans of the new government, which is being formed in China, are said to be aimed at reuniting the country.

Marshall Feng

WANTED PEACE.

As House labor sub-committee hearing, President Albert J. Fitz- gerald of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers (CIO) holds up a copy of his union’s constitution to emphasize his point that, like the U.S. Constitution, “the principles on which labor’s rights rest are not written in stone.”

In Poland, Mr. N. Feng visited Warsaw and the Soviet of Cau- rich, which were being reviewed from the perspective of the United Nations. He also visited the factory of the Polish workers in the United States. Feng is the representative of the Communist Chinese delegation.

Napunova Writes

From Russia; Says People’s Peace

The people and governments of Eastern Europe and Russia are busy in reconstruction and peace. They are not interested in war, according to Jukov N. Feng, one of the four ILWU rank and file delegates (one from Hawaii and three from the mainland) who are traveling Europe on a union-sponsored trip.

On the political front, Feng is anxious to see the reconstruction of the U.S. and the restoration of the people’s peace.

InfluX of US Products

With Austria Cut Off

VIENNA, Austria—Heavy influx of U.S. manufactured products and lack of raw materials are reasons given for the 27% per cent increase in unemployment here in the past three months. The official figures from which this information was taken do not reflect the true extent of unemployment since the workers are not required to register at labor exchanges.

The country is seriously affected and the official figures show that the number of unemployed is much higher than the official figures indicate.

To the workers of Russia, Feng wrote:

“Your work is vital to the future of Europe. Your country has stood against the forces of war. Now it is our turn to do our part.”

For Senator... Democrat

For... Democrat

PETROWSKI, JOSEPH, Sr.

POLITICS... INDEPENDENT

FOR: Labor, veterans, small business and professional workers.

AGAINST: End of the war without peace.

FOR: Immediate demobilization.

AGAINST: Dying from the war.

VOTE FOR PETROWSKI... DEMOCRAT
“Can’t Pay” Says Mother; Children Fed by Public

By EDWARD ROHRBROUGH

“Can’t pay me, what happens when kids are poor?”

Such was the note of resignation with which Mrs. Lydia Lorenzo ended her days as the mother of 13 children, who were targets for the W. R. Richardson and a task that was unspoken, or the lack of it, that finally drove her to her untimely death. Her six children were not seen, but that of her husband, who died two years ago.

Conscientious Mother

Mrs. Lorenzo was a small, delicate woman who probably never knew the grief of having money enough to support her family. She had lived in a world of her own, and her children were free to roam, eat and play in any way she saw fit. She had a która, and a picture of a young woman she had known, and Lorenzo didn’t work regularly. More recently, her daughter said, “I can’t do anything with a picture that wouldn’t be legal here.

State Do Not Sell

That didn’t stop the employment collection man. He filed suit and took out a writ of garnishment, and when the judge was asked why he was not present in court, he said, “I did not know he was here.”

“I only wish I could talk to a judge. I am a woman, and I would have told a judge how it was, there would not have been any trouble.”

She saw only the Richardson man who told her in an outburst, “You are a woman. I am a man, and I can do anything with a picture that wouldn’t be legal here.”

“Can’t pay me,” she answered. “The public is feeding my children now. How do you expect me to pay you anything?”

People’s Union

Mrs. Lydia Lorenzo, who was arrested in a dispute involving $30.00, together with seven of her 18 children and her present husband, Victor and Lorenzo, who is a railroad man, were reported to have been in court for several days. Mrs. Lorenzo, who was not present, is reported to have threatened to take all three and three more to jail with her.

SHOWS FOOD SOLUTION

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.

EXPOSE PHONY LABOR PAPER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.

EXPOSE PHONY LABOR PAPER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.

EXPOSE PHONY LABOR PAPER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.

EXPOSE PHONY LABOR PAPER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.

EXPOSE PHONY LABOR PAPER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.

EXPOSE PHONY LABOR PAPER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The “Can’t Pay” movement has spread to the state of Indiana, where a group is organizing a campaign to

singe-crop and two-crop farming

southern Indiana and the area

near Frankfort, Ind. The campaign

is directed at the local farmers, who

are being urged to support the

campaign.

The movement started in the late 1940s, when farmers were having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses. The movement gained strength in the 1960s, when farmers were also having difficulty

paying the rent and other expenses.

The movement was led by a
group of farmers who were

dissatisfied with the way the

farmers were being treated by

the government. They argued that

farmers were being forced to

pay too much in taxes and

expenses, and that they were

not being given enough

support by the government.

The movement was successful in

getting the government to

make changes in the way

farmers were treated. Today,

the “Can’t Pay” movement is

still active, and farmers are

still fighting for better

treatment from the government.
Hitch Hiking Requires Skill

By Tiny Todd

So I was standing at the side of the road, figuring I might as well take a ride into town when I saw some very friendly looking people. They were very friendly and offered me a ride. I accepted and we started talking. The driver was very friendly and kept me entertained with stories. He was very knowledgeable about the area and we had a great conversation. It was a pleasant ride and I appreciated the offer of a ride.

Cattle Lifting Day Wakes Up Quiet Kailua

By Betty Eshelman

At about 6 a.m., the cattle started to stir in the barns and the community woke up to the sounds of the cows. The air was thick with anticipation as the farmers and their families prepared for the day. The day was set to be a busy one, with the cattle being moved to new pastures and the farmers tending to their crops. The community was vibrant and alive, with the sound of horses' hooves and the clattering of tools filling the air.

How To Meet The Challenge Of Atomic Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the nation's top planners for an atomic future have their way, Joe Weather will move out of the country to get a job. That's the picture as outlined in an article in Public Works and Religious Education, the August issue of Publications, Bulletin of the Federal Works Agency.

Written by PWA Assistant Administrator J. W. Pollin, the article discusses a recent tour of the President by the National Executive Resources Board, to which Pollin is a PWA heleman.

Pollin says the board thinks development of industry and population is the only answer to the atomic bomb. The board's chief interest is in the construction of underground industrial plants and the development of new small communities. The board believes that the development of small communities is the only answer to the atomic bomb. The board believes that the development of small communities is the only answer to the atomic bomb. The board believes that the development of small communities is the only answer to the atomic bomb.

Prolonging Of Human Life

Experiments With Animals Show Possibilities

Simply by changing the diet, Dr. O. M. McCay and his associates at Cornell University have been able to prolong the lives of rats a great deal. These experiments raise the question whether such a change in diet may be possible for human beings, and are of great interest.

More Urgent Problems

It is obvious that the present methods of prolonging the span of human life are not adequate. There are many important problems that must be solved, and the work of Dr. McCay and his associates is a step in the right direction. The science of aging is in its infancy, and much work remains to be done. The results of these experiments are a reminder of the importance of diet in maintaining good health, and a call for further research in this field.

Nutritional Deficiency Disease

It is a very important discovery, of Dr. McCay and his co-workers at Cornell University, that a diet high in protein and fat can prolong the life of rats. The reason for this is not clear, but the results are nonetheless significant. Further investigation is needed to determine the exact cause of this phenomenon, and to see if it can be applied to human beings.

One good example of this is the prolongation of the life of rats by a diet high in protein and fat. This is a very important discovery, and it is likely that similar results can be achieved in human beings. Further research is needed to determine the exact cause of this phenomenon, and to see if it can be applied to human beings. The results of this experiment are a reminder of the importance of diet in maintaining good health, and a call for further research in this field.
Sports Roundup

Beautiful Dorothy Woihatcha strut her stuff as an "Miss Massachusetts" in the "Miss America" beauty pageant in Atlantic City, N.J.

Witch-Hunter, Labor Baiter DODGES TAXES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Evidence that the real "witch-hunter and labor baiter" on United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers (UEW) is not being charged with state income evasion like a year ago. The Milwaukee Journal reported on Kersten Jan. 20, 1947:

Los Angeles Women Take Action High Prices of Meat

Los Angeles (AP) — Evidence that the real "witch-hunter and labor baiter" on United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers (UEW) is not being charged with state income evasion like a year ago. The Milwaukee Journal reported on Kersten Jan. 20, 1947:

Meat Balls For Festive Company

Ground meat appeals several times a week in her kitchen. She might include a few cubes of bread, but these must be used within a few days. She will serve the meatballs with a generous amount of fresh vegetables and a flavorful sauce.

Barb's Secret

2-4 cup milk

Combine ingredients in a large mixing bowl. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Allow to cool, then freeze. Serve over rice or with a side of vegetables.

BRACED MEAL BAVES

2-4 cup mustard

Combine mustard with other ingredients in a large mixing bowl. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Allow to cool, then freeze. Serve over rice or with a side of vegetables.
``Inside Story of the Legion''

By JUSTIN GRAY
St. Bavo & Grace, New York

When World War II broke out, Justin Gray was working on the 5th A.D. in Havre, Montana, and later as a correspondent for the New York Times in Washington, D.C. Among his many assignments, the most memorable was reporting on the American Legion from GIAs, and he kept in touch with and wrote for the Legion throughout his career. He died in 1948, and his work on the Legion is a significant part of American history.

Television Is Coming Along; Meantime, Tortures Audience

There are times, as in the case of television, when Hawaiians can thank their stars. As one of the last to cash in on a medium that has captured the imaginations of millions, television has brought new opportunities to a community that has traditionally been closed off from the rest of the world. In addition to the usual fare of soap operas, sitcoms, and news programs, television has also brought a variety of educational and cultural programs to the islands.

Movie Shorts

Duke Kahanamoku, one of the most famous surfing champions, was one of the most popular attractions in Hollywood during the 1930s. His movie appearances included roles in films such as "The King of Surfing," "The Sailor," and "The Wave of the Future." Kahanamoku was known for his good looks, athletic ability, and charisma, and his films helped to bring surfing to a wider audience.

PHOTO COMPANY

(Washington, D.C.)

Under the old schedules, the union maintains a reservation for a limited number of positions, which would reduce the number of days a person could work at a reduced rate. The union has negotiated a new agreement that increases the number of positions and guarantees a minimum number of work days. The new agreement includes provisions for increased benefits and job security.

6. That the Legion considers "Communist" and radical anyone who does not agree with its own NAM policies. Gray heard veterans of the American Legion in Minneapolis and later as a correspondent for the New York Times in Washington, D.C. Among his many assignments, the most memorable was reporting on the American Legion from GIAs, and he kept in touch with and wrote for the Legion throughout his career. He died in 1948, and his work on the Legion is a significant part of American history.

"YOU WORKED FOR THAT NEW DEAL OUTFIT, I'M NOT HIRING ANY FOREIGN AGENTS!"

OFF THE CUFF

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND BUCKS

WALTER DILLINGHAM shows that $100,000 will be spent in his behalf during the primary and general election campaigns. He was at a party in D.C. on the Hill on a rainy Friday. He was then in the Halls of Congress and spoke briefly on the money for the mayor's job as he did in 1946. However, this time it won't be so easy.

GHOST WRITERS

That speech by VICTORIA K. HOIT (who will be low on the totem pole) comes at the primary return at the Washington Demo rally, was written by her. Authorship of the Washington Demo speech, was written by her. Authorship of the gonna is credited to her. The open secret is under the signing of the ghost writer.

TIPS

If a certain past commander of the American Legion doesn't stop popping off about being a veteran of the last two bloodbath, sooner or later he is going to reveal his war record. Actually, he was a CIVILIAN ambulance driver in World War I and he was an ordnance technician in the Great War. He is not even eligible to be a member of the American Legion.

WALTER DILLINGHAM shows that $100,000 will be spent in his behalf during the primary and general election campaigns. He was at a party in D.C. on the Hill on a rainy Friday. He was then in the Halls of Congress and spoke briefly on the money for the mayor's job as he did in 1946. However, this time it won't be so easy.

GHOST WRITERS

That speech by VICTORIA K. HOIT (who will be low on the totem pole) comes at the primary return at the Washington Demo rally, was written by her. Authorship of the Washington Demo speech, was written by her. Authorship of the gonna is credited to her. The open secret is under the signing of the ghost writer.

"Hammond Ward" was the first to tell a story about the open secret. A "open secret" is a standing joke among the Ghost writers.

OVERHEAD

"TOM O'BRIEN will give a week's pay ($100) to anyone who can show that the money used in the primary and general election campaigns was not used by his campaign managers. This information has been obtained from the records of the Washington Post and the New York Times.

Crossword Clue: "The last to cash in on a medium that has captured the imaginations of millions, television has brought new opportunities to a community that has traditionally been closed off from the rest of the world. In addition to the usual fare of soap operas, sitcoms, and news programs, television has also brought a variety of educational and cultural programs to the islands."
Women's Fight for Jury Duty

Women of Hawaii have conducted a mass demonstration of placard campaigns and struggles to achieve equal jury service for women. This is not only a fight for women's rights but also a struggle for justice for all, as evidenced by the tireless efforts of women throughout our state to ensure that women are represented on juries in Hawaii.

The territorial Congress of Women, through its Women's Rights Division, has been actively involved in the campaign. They have organized rallies, written letters to elected officials, and even held a hunger strike to draw attention to the issue. The Women's Rights Division has been instrumental in bringing this issue to the forefront of the political agenda in Hawaii.

The struggle for jury duty equality is not just for women but for all citizens. It is a fight for justice and fairness in the legal system. The Women's Rights Division has fought tirelessly for the right of all citizens to be considered equally in the justice system.

To Remove a Word

In 1949, the Women's Rights Division had a significant victory when the territorial Congress passed a resolution calling for jury duty equality. This was a major achievement and was seen as a step towards progress in the struggle for women's rights.

The resolution stated that women should have the same rights as men when it comes to jury service. It was a clear victory for the Women's Rights Division and was seen as a major step towards achieving equality.

In conclusion, the struggle for jury duty equality is not just a fight for women but for all citizens. It is a fight for justice and fairness in the legal system. The Women's Rights Division has fought tirelessly for the right of all citizens to be considered equally in the justice system.

Debate

The debate on jury duty equality is still ongoing. There are those who argue that women should not have the same rights as men when it comes to jury service, but the Women's Rights Division continues to fight for equality.

In the end, the struggle for jury duty equality is about more than just women's rights. It is about creating a more just and equitable society for all citizens.