By EDWARD ROBERGH

The Department of Public Instruction, as usual, has published its annual report. The report is a typical example of the type of book that is published by the Department of Public Instruction. It is a lengthy and detailed account of the work of the Department during the year. The report is well-written and is a good example of the type of book that is published by the Department of Public Instruction.

New Faces

As the Supreme Court opened its 1949-take term, two staunch friends of labor and supporters of civil rights were missing, and in their places sat new appointees.

Another liberal member, William O. Douglas, recovering from an injury, would be absent a good part of the year.

THE RECENT deaths of Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge had left a great gap in the balance of human and constitutional rights. Tom Clark of Texas, whose reputation was squelched only by his failure to investigate clear-cut cases of oil and other monopolies, was certain in vote with the conservatives. Sherman Minton, a good New Dealer many years ago, had left his liberalism. His more recent record as a federal judge in Chicago shows little of the humanism, courage and insight into the problems of labor and people generally that characterized Murphy and Rutledge.

THE NEW COMPOSITION of the court will face the key test of the Constitution and the law as what the judges say they are. Appointments to the Supreme Court, as well as to other courts, are as important to the people as election races.

Behind the Scenes

The fight in Washington between the air force and the navy was acrimonious, straining, for underwriting the squabble for air might by military brass was jealously comparision of big industrialists.

CHAIRMAN OAIW VISON of the House Armed Services Committee made an obvious statement when he said he saw "the most serious "maneuvering." Navy Secretary Frank P. Matthews found for his department, saying the cut in naval budget ($263,000,000) ordered by Pentagon leaders would endanger national security.

This showdown of the economy the air force would lose naval and marine air power about half its present strength.

Leaving off the naval argument for a stranger naval air arm. Admiral Arthur W. Radford, commander of the U. S. Paciest sea, said he spoke as a military statesman and not as a naval spokesman.

With him were admirals whose names figured importantly in the Pacific during World War II.

ADMIRAL RADFORD had a sympathizer in Chairman Vison who said he was informed by a reliable source that the air force wants to absorb the Navy of all large aircraft carriers and air groups. Secretary Matthews accused the defense department of having a "secret order" to scuttle the navy's air arm.

This information was nothing new. Defense Secretary Louis Johnson was con-director of Consolidated-Vultee with Floyd B. Ogilvie before President Truman appointed him to a cabinet position as a "warding politician." His campaign fund.
Consolidated-Vultee makes the B-36, which is the air force's pride, joy and glory, and it clinched the billion-dollar deal only after Johnson got into office.

THE CONCENTRATION on B-36 construction was accompanied at the expense of any favored by the navy. Glenn L. Martin, produced the navy plans and he put up a behind-the-scenes fight which recently blew up during hearings of Senate D of Illinois.

This time, as the navy budget was cut further, shipbuilders who were at the hearing fought from behind the scenes to keep the Navy from losing a project which flies 10,000 miles, for that cut down the gray on aircraft carrier production.

Tokyo Rose

"Tokyo Rose" strives to remain on the air. She has changed her voice, use, and script to avoid being caught. She has also tried to make her broadcasts sound more like those of another country.

The jury had the defendant guilty of demoralizing American troops in the Pacific in 1944. When she broadcast that ships were sunk in the Leyte Gulf and a service man was "in the hospital," many Americans assumed the Japanese were really ill. Now, he had been taken and won an all-white jury by eliminating American broadcasts entirely. He had effected every success from the Court, who had been by-weighted in his favor.
ACLU REPORTS
Creation Of Secret Police
First Time In U. S. History

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI’s functions have been expanded unannounced, alarmingly, the ACLU daily, freedom, and it has created a secret police with its array of informers and undercover agents. Publicly, the group is the National Urban League’s annual report for 1949-50.

The report, published as a pamphlet entitled “In the Shadow of the State,” is a legal document detailing the expansion of the FBI’s role in the country. The group is the National Urban League’s annual report for 1949-50.

According to the report, “In the Shadow of the State,” when a person is suspected of being a communist or a sympathizer with communism, the FBI has the power to conduct searches and seizures without a warrant. This means that the FBI can enter a home or business without a warrant and seize evidence.

The report also states that the FBI has the power to conduct wiretaps and other electronic surveillance without a warrant. This means that the FBI can monitor a person’s communications without a warrant.

The ACLU is concerned that these actions violate the Fourth Amendment, which protects against unreasonable searches and seizures. The group is calling on Congress to investigate the FBI’s activities.

MORE ON BUYERS HOLD BAG

(During a recent trip to the market, I noticed that the bag holders on the market were not being used. It occurred to me that this may be because people are no longer carrying cash. Instead, they are using credit cards.

I spoke with a few people who had experienced this change. They said that they no longer carry cash because they find it inconvenient. They also said that they prefer to use credit cards because they can track their spending more easily.

I think that this trend is a positive development. It allows people to track their spending and to avoid overspending. It also reduces the need for cash, which can be lost or stolen.

Additionally, I think that this trend is a positive development for the environment.cashless transactions reduce the need for plastic bags and other single-use items.

I hope that this trend continues and that people continue to use credit cards and other forms of electronic payment. It allows us to track our spending and to avoid overspending. It also reduces the need for cash, which can be lost or stolen.

The new management, as everyone knows, is the result of a long and bitter struggle. The old management was not able to maintain the high standards of service that the company had always prided itself on. The new management has taken over and is determined to bring the company back to its former glory.

The new management has made many changes, some of which are controversial. They have closed some of the smaller branches, which some people feel is a bad idea. They have also increased the prices of the products, which has caused some controversy as well.

However, the new management has also made some positive changes. They have invested in new technology, which has improved the efficiency of the company. They have also increased the salaries of their employees, which has helped to retain some of the best workers.

In conclusion, the new management of the company is facing some challenges, but they are determined to overcome them. They have the backing of the shareholders and the support of the employees, and they are working hard to make the company a success.

If you have any questions or concerns about the new management, I would be happy to address them.

Doors Of Vacant Houses Open To Fire

The door stands open at 1223 S. King St. The door stands open, and the building is open for many months, and inside the building the old newspaper is being sold. The old newspaper is on the floor, and the old newspaper is on the floor. The old newspaper is a daily newspaper and it is not a Sunday edition.

More Danger

The yellow-gold building on Young St. is open to all visitors, too, and though its doors are locked, the building is not a danger to anyone. It is a Morning Star building, and its windows are not broken.

Elaborate Classes

The building is open to kids from the Courtland Hotel, and the kids are using the building for their own purposes. The building is also used by the Salvation Army.

Question: What do you propose to do to solve unemployment in Hawaii?

By Rep. JAMES W. TRASK, Oahu.

The bill in the finance committee authorizing the City and County to go ahead with the building should be passed. That would help immensely.

Not the only problem

Rep. NORMAN A. KANIJI, Maui: The problem is not the building, but the lack of employment for the unemployed. The jobless are the problem.

After Two Years

On solving unemployment, the bill that was passed is a step in the right direction.

Sen. TOSHIO ANAGI, Maui, Molokai, Lanai.

There is a need for long-range planning. The problem is not just the building, but the lack of employment for the unemployed. The jobless are the problem.

Sen. HERBERT R. LEE, Haui:

The problem is not just the building, but the lack of employment for the unemployed. The jobless are the problem.

Sen. BENJAMIN F. DILLINGHAM, Oahu:

This is the first step in solving the problem. The building is not the only problem, but it is a step in the right direction.

Sen. WILLIAM H. HILL, Haui:

This is a step in the right direction. The building is not the only problem, but it is a step in the right direction.

Sen. MANUEL R. AGUIAR, Kahului:

This is a step in the right direction. The building is not the only problem, but it is a step in the right direction.

Sen. HARRY R. RICHARDSON, West Maui:

This is a step in the right direction. The building is not the only problem, but it is a step in the right direction.

Mr. Hill is correct. The building is not the only problem, but it is a step in the right direction.

Former Paralytic Loses Cash, Gets Credit For Day’s Pay

The fact that he had spent a day in the stockyards and meant absolutely nothing to me, so I had no interest in his job," declared Robert L. Miller, head of the Maritime Group, as he described the incident.

In explaining why he had to give up his job, Mr. Miller said: "The reason is that I was going to attend a seminar."

Mr. Miller, 45, is a long-time member of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and has been active in various civic organizations. He is the author of several books on international trade and finance.

"I was referred to the parking lot by a friend of mine," Mr. Miller said. "I went there to pick up my car and found that I had been locked out."

"I then went to the union office, but they wouldn't let me in," Mr. Miller said. "I had to wait outside for about an hour before I could get in."

Mr. Miller said that he had been locked out of his car because he was a member of the Marine Engineers' Union, which is affiliated with the Maritime Group.

SHAMEFUL AND DISGRACEFUL

The dailies are doing a wonderful job of praising the efforts and accomplishments of the strike. We can understand their position, for they are controlled and are dependent upon the big employers who in turn exercise decisive control over the legislators.

The record of the special session is bad. It is shameful and disgraceful, to put it mildly.

The legislators were called in an emergency to help settle the strike. Federal conciliation officials, Labor Secretary To- bin, Federal Commissioner of San Francisco, Senator Morse and others strongly suggested that arbitration would be the enlightened method of settling the wage dispute. But the legisla- ture ignored and killed arbitration bills, and carried on the "cave-in of employers' demands", set out to pass strike-breaking laws with dangerous police powers of the government.

The strike law got tied up in legal lit- erature and delays. Finally, in a split decision, argued for police power in support- ing the strike-breaking law, while the other argued for human and constitutional rights. Both bills were voted down by the 9th Circuit Court in San Francisco. Here, the legislature is acting in the name of "invalidating its face" by Judge Motzger.

The legislators who have been waiting around for days and weeks for the court decision before actually doing anything else, have all of a sudden become busy in the last days of the session. They are passing new laws left and right, and from the debates we get the impression there is a special interest and vote-getting politics.

While only a few weeks ago senator Duanne was Misty by his colleagues for planning to call a session to settle the strike, now the legislators are passing bills, providing piddling amounts for public workers who are on the dock strike, and using it as a ploy to try to get more votes for their re-election.

It is not remarkable that they have finally turned their faces toward the unemployed who line up in Iolani Palace grounds, not far from the offices where "they" met for 70 days of this special session. This is politics.

"At the next election, the number of voters among the jobless would be greater. The bulk of the legislators are keeping one eye on the votes and one eye on the Big Five employers. They know their programs, for how can they serve their bosses in the legislature without first corralling the votes of the jobless?

If the big employers were truly concerned about the unemployed, we would have seen legislative action to create and provide work for the jobless. Unemploym- ment was the critical issue before the strike; it remained so during the strike, and it still is.

But what actually did the legislators do? They continue to support the program of big employers who want a poll of unemployed who can be used as strike-breakers, as do the other workers. Social Darwinism must be overturned and remain a constant threat to the employed, who are forced to hum-

WATERFRONT STRIKE OF 1916

SYMPATHY AND VIOLENCE

As the strike which began on September 16 continued it gathered a momentum surprising even to the union men, for it was no competitive battle but a war. Violence, in the form of a strike, broke out between the waterfront workers and the union members. Twelve days later the union called a strike from June 29 to September 19, securing a wage and a bonus increase of $1.50. The workers were told they were "beaten" and "outlawed by the strikebreakers.

While the workers claimed that the strike was a battle, the employers claimed that it was a business strike. The strike breakers, who were brought in from the mainland, were met with violence from the strikers.

The Iron Workers union gave $500 toward the strikers' support, and the Allied Tradesmen's Fund raised $1,750. Other contributions came from various organizations and individuals who formed an important political bloc, the politicians kept a sympathetic finger on the pulse of the people.

No Strike In 15 Years

The general public seems to have known that the long strike was due to the fact that the workers were not willing to accept a lower wage. As a consequence of this strike, a number of unions were formed and a political bloc was established, with the object of supporting the strikers.

Peace A Success

At 15 years ago, just as today, the press pointed to the horrible conditions existing in the island community in the strike action. "Honoilu has had before the example of San Francisco, where organized labor and a sympathetic press have combined to form a strong labor union, and demand the union shop. In 1915, they did not use the term "feudal" and carnegiep, but their feelings toward Mainland union men were the same as now.

The strike was called and all citizens were invited to a big civic cause. The Advertiser was invited to join the arbitration committee, and officially negotiated the settlement.

Advertsing Sings Same Tune

For the last 3 years the Advertiser not only print the same tune; it sings the same words.

Moreover, compared with the hostility it showed toward the strikers of 1918, theAdvertiser is showing a sympathetic attitude toward the Longshoremen's strike. The Advertiser, which once described the strike as "a travesty on the American system," now says that the strike is "a travesty on the American system" and "a travesty on the American system."
