$500 for Kauhane’s Trip Tells Story of Left-to-Right Shift

By SPECIAL WRITER

One of the biggest spills within the Democratic Party in the alignment of forces between Governor Stainback and anti-Stainback groups during the past two years took place when Rep. Charlie Kauhane moved into the governor’s camp.

This fact was recognized this week as the Territorial Democratic prepared for their convention. At the last convention two years ago, Kauhane was a supporter of anti-Stainback forces, and was elected national committeeman. He was among top Territorialists who sharply differed with the governor.

In the course of the convention, Kauhane, with Supervisor Chaucer Maak and Jack Burns, chairman of the Oahu County Democratic Committee, offered a $500 donation as part of a $5,000 fund drive for the Territorial Democratic Party.

Old Alejando Llanos, who has reportedly taken $1,000,000 from local Filipino in some of the steadiness split of the company, also showed a sign of weakening when he threatened Juanito Bobile, a building contractor, to leave his firm and establish his own firm. Bobile had invited from Manila, and turned a line for the lobby of a swanky hotel.

Llanos, according to reliable information, is making plans to leave the Philippines, where he is supposed to provide capital to open the Manila Bank. Last year he made a trip to Manila for the same purpose, but he was unable to raise the money. His plan of new dollars in bold checks did not do the trick. In order to make the trip, he fled to two local business men to put up $12,000 in bond at the internal revenue office, where he used that amount in overriding income taxes.

Man Gets 3 Traffic Tickets For One

Old Grudge Blamed

"That guy has had a grip on me ever since I was a kid," says Benjamin Matilis, age 20, telling how he got the three traffic tickets when—"he thought he was only out to get even,"

"That guy," in this case, Sergeant Emil Hutch, and actor of the same name, got two extra tickets from an officer just because Hutch happened along when the first officer was writing the ticket for Matilis.

The incident happened several weeks ago, but has only just come up to the surface, says Matilis, "because he has not yet been able to make the payment which my lawyer secured for me.

"I don't really see why I should have any ticket," says Matilis, "because the whole thing happened on private property and everyone was satisfied.

Matilis was talking to a friend in Honolulu Heights, when he struck a garage and came to a stop. The owner of the garage was consulted at the time, and Matilis promised that all necessary arrangements would be made. The owner told him he need not report the police.

Beans Chief Dish At Dinner Food Cost $1,001

By STAFF WRITER

Can 1,400 people eat $1,001.27 worth of beans at a single sitting? A small number of Democrats do. The fact of the matter is that a group of the Democrats served over a ton of beans and an hour and a half of beans for $1,001.27 at the board's dinner last night, April 17.

The beans were served at the board's dinning room at the Board of Education's office building. The dinner lasted two hours. The cost of the meal was $1,001.27, and the beans were served in a large bowl.

Wearing a white band of flower's around the wrist, Kageyama yesterday made his first public appearance since April 10 when he told the congressional joint committee on Okinawa, 1947, a member of the Committee. His appearance was at the weekly meeting of the Board of Supervisors of which Kageyama is a member and from which the other members have asked to resign.

Though he had promised to give his colleagues an answer to their questions on the Kageyama-Akau feud, Kageyama failed to do so. National Summary

April 27, 1950

In Washington, the Buchanan lobby investigating committees didn’t go after Vice President Herbert C. Nelson of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the manner that congressional bodies go after militant trade unions.

Nelson, a leading spokesman for the real estate lobby which was seen as the target against public housing programs, told Lies, too. He said his organization had spent about $130,000 a year on lobbying. Independent estimates of the NAREB’s influence money to defeat public housing run as high as $5,000,000.

NELSON’s anti-democratic thinking which presented before the Buchanan committee did not get a big play in the daily press, which gets advertisements from membership organizations of the Real Estate Board. Nelson sided off on the kind of government he believed in by admitting he had written to his boss last year: “I believe in a republic” operated by elected representatives who are permitted to do the job, as the board of directors should. I don’t think anybody except direct taxpayers should be allowed to vote. That is why I oppose women being allowed to vote at all.”

“Real Liar”

Before the Electric Club at San Francisco’s Palace Hotel last week, F. Joseph Dorsey, a bank vice president, under the title of “The Electric King,” presented the second bridge idea, and the NRCVU leader was a “perjurer and a liar,” who he was said to be a candidate for public office, and that he was “playing an important part in the plan to bring about a revolution.”

NATIONAL BAY Bridge’s Attorney Vincent Hallinan slapped a $500,000 libel suit against local newspapers.

Hallinan said: “Domino is the real liar. During the trial to see the jury was the case of one simple perjury and that communism was not an issue in it. Now, outside the courtroom after conviction has been obtained upon mere hearsay as there, he boasts that he has stopped an imagined revolution.”

SCHMITT, which alleges libel and slander, names as other defendants, CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey, President James P. Cannon of the National Maritime Union, John Schenmer and Mervyn Hatchorne. The latter two testified against Bridges during the trial.

Budenz’ Recollections

Louis Budenz, admitted ex-Communist and one editor of the Daily Worker, told the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee last week that as an FBI informer working as much as 18 hours a week testifying against agents—he had not yet come to Owen Lattimore. In general, Budenz said, “I testified as a Communist and as a Communist Party member, but admitted that the charge was based on hearsay.”

Lattimore’s lawyer, former Interior Undersecretary and Porte, gave Budenz serious evidence concerning Mr. Lattimore’s personal life, but Mr. Lattimore had not come to a figure as important as Lattimore in his recollections, he admitted that “in my recollections I remembered having been told at a secret meeting back in 1937 that Lattimore was a Communist, now that McCarthy had brought the name up, I could not remember whether or not there had been a stenographer present at an editorial conference at Cullers in 1945.”

When the editor had said: “That ought to be cleared.” Budenz, said, “Oh, yes. LAST WEEK, he was singing before the Senate subcommittee that Lattimore was a Communist.”

As the week’s end, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, without naming McCarthy, said that it was his duty to warn people on loyalty grounds as to “fellowbürgers.” The President’s loyalist called McCarthy “a most dangerous man.”

Budenz, calling on a witness stand, backed up a series of charges aimed at the State Department, said McCarthy, said Lippman was a Communist Party member, but admitted that the charge was based on hearsay.

The Issei in Chicago are determined to make their voices heard and to have their rights respected.

Mr. HAYES of Arizona. Does not the gentleman think that the American Negro is the best-off minority in the United States? Does he think that he is treated better than any other minority in the United States?

Mr. CARVER. I will answer the gentleman. The negro has been a very useful and necessary part of our population. He is not treated as well as he should be, but he is doing fairly well.

Frank Silva Fights For His Constitutional Rights

Statement of Frank Silva to the Constitutional Convention at Honolulu, Hawaii, April 30, 1950:

"The secretary of the Convention later reported the report of the Special Committee adopted by this Convention, with which I disagree. I have difficulty in understanding the confusion that has arisen today. I pursued my own concept of constitutionalism as evidenced by my absence from the last convention. I believe that the Constitution would not be among the first to be interpreted by the courts. The Constitution is the law of the land, and it is the duty of the courts to interpret the Constitution as it is written, not as it is declared by the secretary."

Frank Silva, right, with his attorney, Myron Symons.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ON FRANK SILVA'S EXPULSION

The statement of Frank Silva, forceful and to the point, as he is, are publishing elsewhere on this page, is a historic document and an inseparable part of the fabric that will finally be the constitution of the State of Hawaii.

The fact that Silva was placed in a position to address the constitutional convention whose members were on the verge of expelling him, is significant. Even this fact alone will point out to posterity that the constitutional convention was held in an atmosphere clouded by fear and charged with hysteria.

Frank Silva, elected by his Kauai constituents, took his seat in the constitutional convention, and before the House un-American Committee hearings began. There was no doubt that the hearings were timed with the convention, and that the intent was to show that the U.S.C., of which Silva is a member, had Communist tides.

Silva took a loyalty oath at the convention saying he is not and never was a Communist Party member for the past five years. But he refused to answer the same question before the un-American Activities Committee, on grounds of self-incrimination.

In these times when words of perfumed witnesses are accepted and found sufficient, and methods are maturing to eliminate opposition, there is nothing strange about the stand which Silva took.

Silva committed no crime. He stood on his constitution, and when the delegates refused to exonerate him of charges, he left the convention. He was grieved, yes, by the visitation Congressional committee, along with 38 others, but contempt must be proved.

When the convention cuts this, the legal minds saw their thin tissue of argument demolished. It took them hours after that, to find a reason to expel Silva._YES, Silva was an innocent man as he walked in the armory, while some of his accusers had decided to kick him out searching for reasons to expel him.

And there was a long delay in taking final action, while the delegates wavered to get a unanimous vote against Silva. Encouraged, seventy voted against the resolution when expunged Silva for "contumacious conduct." Is standing on constitutional rights contumacious behavior? How flimsy and ridiculous was the reason used.

In quieter moments, away from hysteria and pressure, we wonder how many of the delegates would reconsider, against Silva—a strong union man, a believer in civil rights who would fight fearlessly for the underdog and his union rank and file, and firmly take positions against the plantation bosses when the same pressure was applied.

What happened to Silva in the convention indicates the political atmosphere under which the constitution is being written. Silva's fight was basic to writing a democracy. If the Constitution Committee would the delegates write, then the earlier argument that the Constitution had to be written by the people.

We cannot ignore the fact that special interest groups, particularly big economic interests, are devious of a constitution that would best protect them. When the constitution is written by those same reasons, were not intimidated. Posteriority will look to them as people of courage, believers in democratic principles who made their contribution to making the constitution as democratic as possible.

The American Bowling Congress

This column has continuously carried the name of the un-American Bowling Congress’ restrictive ‘white male’ clause in its constitution. We have written before about how the Board of Directors is taking steps to remedy the situation, but it seems that the policy of the Congress is made to see that this sort of policy is contrary to the traditions of the United States.

The American Bowling Congress operates also in Hawaii under the sponsorship of a cross including all races who are at one time to be a part of the Congress for bowling. It is also in New York and also in Wisconsin, unless the elections made by the Congress are made to see that this sort of policy is contrary to the traditions of the United States.

The Olsson-Miller Fight

Last Saturday night at the Gage, Austin Jones presented his first pro boxing card featuring Bobo Olson and the Roy Miller fight. The audience at the Gage had a pretty good turn out, but the supporting card was less than expected. The semi-final match was made up for the mediocre main event, when Amadeo Renna, led the Rocky Mountain territory, and Renna took a pretty easy fight. These victories were well received by the spectators, who had a sentimental favorite in Renna. By the way, the police department has completed a bomb out. We’ll go along with the Gage crowd with that statement.

Sports Tid-Bits From Here and There

Of interest to the local and foreign community is the recent one-two-three finish of the four-member team from the old country in the Boston AA Marathon held in the Battery, New York. The team members were all runners, who had a hard time trying to keep up with the crowd. However, they managed to finish the race in a good time.

Looking over the Cash Ball, one night we came across a ‘filler’ which states that the money is cessions, great English legist just as one would expect.

Which reminds me that last Wednesday evening we were at a conference of the local officials, and they said that the money was going to be spent on some important purposes, but the ‘filler’ didn’t do it, so they said it wasn’t going to be spent at all.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

During the past few years the Democratic Party has been taking on a semblance of a real political party, based on active precinct clubs.

This rejuvenation did not come about automatically. It was a real deal of political organizing and leg-work that was required. And in the process of doing so, by taking the Democratic program, the party built a stronger foundation with the common people participating more and more on issues.

One of those who gave unstintingly of their time and effort to build the party are today under attack. The Big Five employers, their associates and the Republican Party with their band and the Democratic Party split many ways. It is said the Red Issue will be brought up this Sunday at the convention, as a move to oust those labelled "Communists."

The last convention in 1948 weathered the same storm, and this convention evidence will try with liberals holding the party together.

GIVE THE RANKS HELP!

Everyone knows by now that Hawaii needs new industries and government projects to alleviate the unemployment situation and improve the depressed economic situation.

Therefore, it was all the more interesting to read in the Star-Bulletin on Tuesday a published an editorial, titled, "New Industries, New Jobs—Or Depression."

With 30,000 unemployed and many thousands employed at low wages, the need for new industries is utterly urgent.

In the long editorial, which we read carefully to the end, we felt the evening paper was on the mark in the suggestion that for this at this stage it is safe to do so. In the last paragraph we found the extent to which the Star-Bulletin would go to express its concern. The paragraph, which was a punch line, said:

"We have got to get out and find new ways to keep everybody busy."

The editorial, which was long enough, should have gone a little further to say that "money begets money." Nearly all the new industries Hawaii has been able to hold and entertain, need new capital, money to start new industries. But the banks are tight with their present capital and many who want to venture out into new lines of endeavor are not in positions where they can borrow large sums, running into the millions, from Mainland finance companies, as Big Five cooperatives do.

Yes, when local banks can't satisfy the needs of capitalists seeking to establish new industries, this is because they control— they go to Mainland financial sources. But independent small and medium business men have a tough time getting financial support.

Last year there was a move in the legislature to push a measure to allow Mainland banks to come to Hawaii to do business. The move was opposed by the Big Five banks, who found this measure that would have let down the barrier to "foreign" banks. Businessmen who have been pinch, who want to be afraid to appear before a public hearing.

Local banks are still tight with their loans. Numerous businessmen have ideas and plans for new enterprises that need more money, but before they can "make money" and before they can provide jobs, loans must come. But no one expects the Star-Bulletin to take a crack at the banks for their policies, but if the daily is for new industries and new jobs, we are sure the people of Hawaii would like it to "face the facts squarely" and direct some editorials at the banks.
