Officials Mum On
Shake-Up In U. S.
Customs Office

By EDWARD ROBBROUGH

The subject of the trumped-up 'narcotics searches' carried out by local U. S. customs agents against members of the Civic Club of Cleveland has apparently been made for the office to handle. The second of the searches was executed last Monday when the Cleveland stopped at Honolulu on her way to the Orient, when customs officers searched the car and searched the possessions of four women, who, as in any possible presence of narcotics. As in the first search, on the Cleveland's suggested trip, no narcotics were found.

The Philippines political campaign in Hawaii can be nothing but a fund-raising enterprise. Mr. Quirino has at least $30,000 in the bank, but his supporters have done a lot of good work here. He has at least $25 toward his candidate's campaign in Manila.

Two Questions

Would President Truman follow an informal precedent of several decades by naming a Roman Catholic judge to the vacant court on the U.S. Supreme Court bench? Would Budge die? And would he maintain the same balance on the high bench from a liberal-conservative viewpoint as his liberal judge to Rutledge's place?

For a Short While the court has been without a Catholic member. The President has said that faith makes no difference to him, and that he will appoint a qualified judge whether he were Protestant, Catholic, or Jew.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, a Catholic, has been promised the next high bench vacancy. But political observers speculate that Truman would go out on the limb to make the appointment. His recent choice of Tom Clark to fill the vacancy left by the death of Justice Frank Murphy was generally criticized as "personal considerations," to an incompetent. His appointment of McGrath as attorney general was a return to normalcy.

Murphy and Rutledge comprised the strong liberal wing with Justice Douglas and Black joining them in various degree. With the appointment of Clark, the conservative wing solidified, and if Truman were to select a liberal in Rutledge's position, the liberal wing would be a minority, particularly in the civil rights cases.

Truman's two preceding appointments to the Supreme Court—Vinson and Burton—were disappointing and far from distinguished, although he has said that his focus was not a "judicial" but an "executive" appointment and "important task as President—because many of them will survive his administration for years to come." The Judicial experience of Truman's appointee is completely inadequate and the work, with Clark's addition to the bench, will be far easier handled.

The Judicial

The inadequacy and inaccuracy of government figures on unemployment are an admitted fact, but Sawyer used them for his purpose. The Census Bureau figures reported that unemployment fell from 4.051 million in July to 6.658 million in August, but "emergency" areas were increasing and more workers were calling for federal government aid.

Showdown Attitude

While the steel industry is enjoying the biggest profit in 20 years, 1.000,000 steelworkers are preparing to strike because the industry refuses to grant them pension and insurance benefits recommended by the President's fact-finding board.

President Fairless, president of U.S. Steel, who will retire at $70,000 a year nine of those days, halted at the recommendation of the President's board. Other steel companies followed suit and the steel workers have ordered the plants to begin shutting down the blast furnaces properly.

As the dispute in steel was developing, workers were quite but snapping up campaigns by the Communists. Foremen were being organized in the Northwest and in the Southwest. The local-Kansas City functionaries were working through, and Chinese with all his personal goon which he had acquired was approaching from the Kansas City functionaries, looking for more aid to his anti-Communist warfare.

Balkan Plot

Randolph Churchill, son of Britain's wartime prime minister, was attached to Marshall Tito's staff during the war. While Tito got help from the Allies to fight the Germans, he said, Churchill and some Americans were switching a plot as far back as 1943 to realign the Balkans.

This was part of the surprise information that came out last week from the mass treason and espionage trials at Budapest. Churchill and the others named have not commented as yet.

Lazar Branov, former commissioner of the Yugoslav branch in Moscow, testified that Tito was promised military support by the Anglo-Americans if he would turn against and fight the Soviet Union.

The Balkan plot was gradually being unraveled as days went by. Besides Churchill, two British ambassadors, Lord Rake, former minister of foreign affairs, and former Lt. Gen. George Palfrey, once the top British representative in the Western Balkans—looked the witness stand. Palfrey admitted offering 10 battalions to foreign agents to overthrow the Hungarian government in an overnight plot.

Branov pleaded partly guilty. Rake and Palfrey both pleaded guilty.

Japanese Immigrants

Just when the Big Three met in Washington to state a statement that they would keep Japan as its own base in greater measure, news reports from Japan that a Japanese officer may be exporting its unemployment, with U.S. occupation approval.

News Writers in Washington said that General MacArthur had always advocated less and less control of Japan, and the Big Three agreement was actually an endorsement of MacArthur's policy.

MacArthur's approval is required for whatever the Japanese government does, and the occupation conducted the fight that the government stepped out of on, it got a sudden jab from MacArthur's headquarters that reminded the Japanese negotiators that was the war.

How well the export of the unemployed would go was highly speculative. The U.S. occupation could hardly give approval, even for the Japanese are excluded from naturalization and immigration quota under U.S. law. With millions living on a small land area, depending on industrial growth for survival, without the occupation, the Japanese saw the export of the unemployed as a temporary solution to a hard-up situation.

On the 10th, which is the anniversary of the Chinese Republic founded by Dr. Sun Yat-sen, news of great significance is being flashed from Peiping. Some students in China predict that the announcement would change the war of a communist government, and the Kuomintang regime would henceforth be the one more effective than the Chinese as an overthrown government.

In Peiping last week arrived Mme. Sun Yat-sen, the widow of the revered founder of the Chinese Republic. An elder sister of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, Mme. Sun had lived the life of a virtual exile in her home. In her last illness, her husband kept her under guard and she did not even know who one of her household help was a Kuomintang spy.

In 1927 when Chiang began his attack against the liberal wing of the Kuomintang and let his police massacre workers and intellectuals, Mme. Sun escaped from China. Ever since her return shortly after she had taken very little part in the Kuomintang government, and had constantly spoken out against corruption and lack of democracy in the regime controlled by her sisters, brother-in-law and brother.

In China the show-trial in custody, present and past towards regarding the three young sisters thus: one loves money, one loves power and one loves China. The first Mme. Kung, wife of tycoon H. O. Kung; the second is Mme. Chiang, and the third is Mme. Sun.

As the Chinese People approached, the war fronts were quiet but snapping up campaigns by the Communists. Foremen were being organized in the Northwest and in the Southwest. The local-Kansas City functionaries were working through, and Chinese with all his personal goon which he had acquired was approaching from the Kansas City functionaries, looking for more aid to his anti-Communist warfare.
Mexico Has Money Troubles
Too; Blames "Yankee Dollars"

By RAY JEROME BAKER
(Special to The RECORD)

MEXICO CITY.—The drastic measures now being taken by the Mexican government to curtail the importation of "Yankee" dollars and foreign money that has taken place this past week may prove to be quite temporary. The government's official rate for the U.S. dollar is at present rather low, but it is rumored that it will be raised to a higher level in the near future. This could mean that the government will be able to retain more of its money and use it for its own purposes.

The government's measures are aimed at reducing the drain on the country's foreign exchange reserves, which have been falling rapidly due to the large inflow of foreign currency. The government is also concerned about the effect of the influx of foreign money on the domestic economy, particularly in the areas of inflation and the balance of payments.

The government hopes that by increasing the cost of importing foreign currency, it will encourage people to use their own money and thereby help to stabilize the country's economy. The government also hopes that these measures will help to reduce the amount of foreign currency held by wealthy individuals and businesses, which could be used to finance imports.

The government is aware that its measures may not be entirely successful in controlling the flow of foreign currency, but it is determined to try. The government is also aware that these measures may not be popular with the people, but it is hoping that the benefits of a stable economy will outweigh the costs.

The government has been faced with a difficult situation, as it is trying to balance the need for economic stability with the desire to maintain its relationship with the United States. The government is aware that its measures may not be entirely successful in controlling the flow of foreign currency, but it is determined to try. CONSUMERS POTLUCK

TOOTHPOWDERS

Consumers Union recently tested a large number of brand-name toothpowders. Among those found to be of "low abrasiveness" were: Pebeo (J.T.); hidden by a host of other brands, including; Colgate; Gvenile (10/); Ammonium; Colgate-Ammonium (11/); Colgate-Ammonium (12/); Colgate-Ammonium (18/); Ammonium (19/); Ammonium (20/).

Among those of "average" abrasiveness were: Phillips Milk of Magnesia (18/); Listerine (18/); Calosol (19/); and Colgate-Ammonium (20/).

TOOTHPASTE

Three brands of toothpaste were tested by Consumers Union: Aromatic (18/); Listerine (18/); and Calosol (19/).

A large number of brands were found to be unsuitable for people with sensitive teeth. A better brand to use is: Kao-Lyns (18/); and Calosol (19/).

Senator Butler Turns On Co-ops, Speaks For Tax

Mr. McNally is a veteran Nebras-ka newspaperman who has followed Sen. Butler’s career for many years. He is a valued member of the State Board of Trade and a leading contributor to the economic development of the state.

By LOYAL MAUPIN

I have no idea as to the extent that this will be known to those who have followed the development of the M.N. in the West but I can tell that its proponents should be able to count on the active support of many members of Congress and ex- pressed interest in the potential for trade with the National Tax Equity and Regulation Coalition. The NRFA is nothing more than a facade for the NAM and was created to give the illusion of obtaining tax legislation that would help the banks in their own business. Recently a bill was introduced under which co-ops would be allowed to operate in the same way as banks, but it was quickly discovered that they were unable to do so because the banks had already secured a majority of the votes in Congress. The NRFA is a fronts group, and I must say that it was one of the worst examples of the stupidity that characterizes the Administration.

Butler Millionaire Grain Man

In a letter to the NRFA, Sen. Butler said that the NRFA is a millionaire grain man and is involved in the operation of various grain elevators. Most of the grain grown in Nebraska is stored in the NRFA's elevators, which are controlled by the NRFA. While he was engaged in debates with the NRFA, Butler held himself out as a friend of the farmers, but his actions were not consistent with this image. He was not a vocal advocate for the farmers, and he was not interested in helping them.

In days it paid dividends, regulators and many millions for him. During the Federal campaign he asked for and secured the resignation of the National Farmers Union from the Senate. One co-op leader was even forced to sell his radio station to the NRFA. A radio station sponsored by the NRFA is not far away from the NRFA’s headquarters in Omaha, Nebraska.

Others have observed that Butler suppressed the interest in his grain business to his partner. Those who claim to know the facts say that Butler merely suppressed the interest of his partner, with the understanding that he was to have it back when the NRFA was dissolved. Butler has said that he will not again suppress the interest of his partner to take over his Senatorial title.

Shawn Color

It wasn’t until its second campaign that the NRFA decided to take a position toward co-ops came to light. In a speech, a gathering of so-called tax experts Butler flatly an- nounced that he favored a tax on the income of all cooperativ enterprises. All Butler speeches are accompanied by a picture of Shawn Color, who is a person of high standing and is a unique and significant figure in American society as a whole. It is hoped that he may be able to help the NRFA in its efforts to promote the interests of the NRFA.

Three reliable, competent, and trustworthy reporters covering the news had Butler’s speech and put it on the public. The reporters had been hired by Butler to promote his campaign, and they were instructed to tell the truth and not to omit any important information.

However, when one thinks for a moment of the various sacrifices sustained by the full 70,000 Japanese in this strike incident, the individual sacrifices of us four persons seem insignificant. We have found in our island experience quite responsible- ness. We owe an especial obligation to the public for the sympathy they have given us.

To renew this we will sincerely exert our best efforts for justice. We will ever bend the knee. We are resolved to fight while this remains to fight.

Wallace Says:

Economic Blockade Of Non-Kuomintang China ‘Stupid’

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The only news of interest in the United States policy in China is China’s determination to maintain an embargo on U.S. goods. The embargo is being maintained in order to prevent the sale of goods to the Chinese. The leaders of the Chinese government in post-war China will be brought to account for their actions. The embargo will be maintained in the future.

Mr. Wallace’s article appears in the current (September) issue of Far East Spotlight, a monthly magazine published in China for an American Foreign Policy, and it is a significant contribution to the understanding of the Chinese government’s actions.

Mr. Wallace observed that in the current Nationalist government of China, there is a great deal of corruption and inefficiency. The Chinese government is not functioning effectively, and it is difficult to see how China can ever become a powerful nation.

The causeless misery

In a criticism of the current U.S. Far East policy, Mr. Wallace said that it is necessary to change the whole approach to the Chinese problem. He said that in the past, the U.S. has been too lenient towards the Chinese government, and that it is now time to take a harder line.

Mr. Wallace pointed out that the Chinese government is not interested in the welfare of the Chinese people. They are interested only in maintaining their own power and preserving their own positions.

The official of the Chinese government, he said, is not interested in the welfare of the Chinese people. He is interested only in maintaining his own power and preserving his own position.

In his article, Mr. Wallace emphasized the importance of the Chinese government’s actions in the future. He said that it is essential for the Chinese government to make a strong effort to improve its own situation.

Mr. Wallace ended his article by saying that the Chinese government must be held accountable for its actions. He said that the Chinese government must be made to pay for its mistakes.

Bosses Scream Treachery
When Caught Flat Footed

BY TINY TODD

"How much," asked George Acres, "do you think you should be able to fund for a single 100,000 man payroll?" "100,000 man payroll sounds like a lot of money," said George. "But think of all the people it would support!" Added George, "And what about the tax revenue that could be generated!"

"I see your point," replied John Doe. "But what about the cost of maintaining such a large force?"

"The cost of maintaining a 100,000 man payroll would be astronomical," said George. "We simply cannot afford it."

"Who got betrayed when those 100,000 men decided they didn't want to work anymore," said George. "They're the ones who got betrayed, and we're the ones who're left holding the bag!"

"You can find plenty of times when the bosses have betrayed their employees, and the whole people of the country. You can look at the history of any large corporation and see how many times the company has fired people, and then hired them back at a lower wage.

"It's a sad state of affairs," said George. "We need to do something about this."

"That's right," said John. "We need to fight back."

"I think we should start a union," said George. "That way, we can negotiate better wages and benefits for all.

Letters To Our Readers

Editor, Honolulu Record:

In reply to Mr. Carpenter's letter last week in the Honolulu Record, there are two reasons why that refusal was the reason for my discharge, and not because of anything stated by Mr. Carpenter.

1. Inefficiency: His statement that I was a "terrible worker" was not accurate. I was not the reason for the quality of my work was "the reason for my discharge, and not because of anything stated by Mr. Carpenter.

Also, during the course of a conversation, he made the statement that "I would be better off if I were in the warehouse," which I consider an "outside activity." This was the final straw, and I realize now that I should have stood up for myself.

SHARON WITCHEL

Frankly Speaking

School teacher: "The educational apparatus of the Big Island is a mess. The teachers are unqualified, and the students are uninterested."

Student: "I don't think so. I see a lot of people who are interested in learning."

Teacher: "That may be true, but the quality of education is still poor."

Student: "I disagree. I think the teachers are doing their best with the resources they have."

Teacher: "I understand that, but the lack of funding and support for the schools is a major issue.

Student: "I agree. We need more resources and better funding to improve the education system."

THE KIM-TRIGO FIGHT

The Phil-Kim, Bin Kim, Al Karedak Combination had it good last week. The business index from reports emanating from the Honokaa Commerce Bureau indicated that the fight was rated 2.5 on the scale of 1, where 1 is the highest. The fight was not as good as one might have expected, but it was still a good fight.

Whether this was a rum or not means came out, and as a result we were rewarded with one of the shortest series. Kim just did not give Trigo time to get set. One of them must have been very close, otherwise no one would have put up a fight or that there were unusual shifts in fighting with quite a decisive finish.

Although the fight was over quickly, I'm afraid I can't say enough to exalt the title. From the hinterlands some agent dropped out a bloke by the name of Oliver Jackson, Jackson fights outside of San Francisco. We know quite a few fighters in the San Francisco area. But this is one of the fights that is going to make a name.

Ray Calvario wanted to get rid of the chores before Nn A, a result Massa God, a fairly promising lad, got knocked out in the first round. This is a nice little victory for the visiting boxer.

Eddie Hayes, by the way, probably wasn't a match for Trigo's style of fighting, but he gave a good account of himself. It was a close fight, and the people who went to see it were definitely impressed.

And Andy Kim made a feeble comeback in his bout with Ray Clyde, a sideliner tour here. The judges and referees called it a draw. We will have to see how it goes the next time we meet.

Sports Hits from Here and There

We have a dollop of Channel swimmers. How comes word of an unorthodox Belgian named Frantse de Moulin who trains on channels. We add that the old good vintage will give him added buoyancy. We dare say that this boy Frantse didn't make the crossing because we haven't heard of him since we read about three weeks ago.

Out in Los Angeles, the wrestling promoters have found a Japanese pro wrestler by the name of the Great Tojo. The stories written by the wrestling promoters have not been good. One says that he was the best wrestler in the world, while another says that he was average. Either way, he has not shown much in the way of talent.

Seventy three miles away, in the Hollywood Bowl by trial balloons and tactics the fundamentals of the pro game.

The Great Tojo was taking a special correspondence course from Rubberband Higginson in May. Unfortunately, the Great Tojo was also the worst wrestler ever to set foot on the Hollywood Bowl. He was not only the worst, but also the most underpaid of the entire roster.
LABOR ROUNDDUP

Companies Dead Set Against Arbitration

Highlights during this week of the nearly five-month-old longshore strike were the following:

-1. The longshoremen by the longshore employees of arbitration as a means of settling the dispute, despite its recommendation by Maurice Tooke, secretary of labor, and Federal Judge G. R. Harris, who in San Francisco yesterday ordered the U.S. Labor Board again to request to appear in the secondary boycott hearing.

The Tamanoan’s "Preference"

Sen. Pres. Wilfred Tsiyama, when asked by Sen. John G. Ochard, chairman of the new open hearing in Tama- noan’s case, the longshoremen’s new open- air mass meeting at the unemployed the Palace of the Union, is scheduled. The longshoremen were transferred to the Tamanoan, he said, he would provide. Now, how many of the Tama- noan’s case are not so much the limited idea but is the more immediate place to meet? The longshoremen in the picket gather daily, waiting for jobs and unemployment compensation, and the strike which has not been a readied with violent challenges the longshoremen.

TIP TO THE EMPLOYERS

"Recommendation: If the workers are down and you feel that you must resist union demands you should call a strike at the cost of a strike, keep the fundamentals in mind:"

1. Avoid giving workers...the...strike. You regard the strike as a feud with...their leaders.

The Tamanoan's...tions are in...which employees can be made to fragile their own interests...:

-2. Meanwhile, a move to resume negotiations in Honolulu ap- parently went up in smoke yesterday when union leaders revealed that it could not take place through the strike on the employers' terms.

The Tamanoan has requested immediate resumption of talks on a continuous basis until Friday, following which, all issues unresolved would be submitted to resolution. Employers agreed to reconsider negotiations but turned down the arbitration proposal.

Meanwhile, sources said that the seven companies would be willing to make a moderate wage offer and would expect the union to step into the talks. These companies are: Island Amalgamated, Island Dairies, Island Gas, Island Iron and Steel, Island Sugar, Island Transit, and Island Transit Express.

In the meantime, union sources indicated that talks on another basis would be needed and that the strike would be continued. The strike is now in its third week and has already passed by the usual 14 days.

The ILWU also indicated that it had made offers to the employers, all of which had been rejected by the seven companies.

-3. Under advisement now before Federal Judges McLaughlin and Missett are the arguments of the ILWU and the Tamanoan concerning the anti-trust law for the southern district of California.

Yesterday, employers and attorneys completed their arguments.

Traction officials claimed the Tamanoan was "doing...action, not to seize the strike and attempt to smash it to smithereens...".

Airling attorneys argued that it was within the power of the...nary to enact such legislation in light of public necessity.

It is expected that the judges will take several days to examine the case.

In the meantime, both sides have adjourned, no doubt awaiting...the public in favor of the Tamanoan...".

THUMB TWIDDERS

This special session has been a lot of expense to the taxpayers. From all appearances, the performance of our elected officials has been bad so that the expenditure can be considered money, poured down a rat hole.

The legislators were called together to cope with the issue. Instead of legislating to help bring a fair settlement of the wage dispute, they plunged into strike-breaking, union-busting laws. Some legislators have indicated that these laws have such intent, and although they voted for them from various motives, a few are now beginning to oppose or question the wisdom of these laws.

This turn of events has come about because the longshoremen, with their bread and butter, have opposed the legislation that would deprive labor of social and economic gains won through years and years of struggle.

Now, in a dilemma because the laws haven't worked, the legislators are twiddling their thumbs, waiting to see what happens next. Meanwhile, they do not seem interested in settling the strike impartially. No, they want to settle it the way they were assigned the "LH 2000" what calls for arbitration has been buried.

These legislators may not have thought so, but the call for arbitration this week by Labor Secretary Tobin and a federal judge in San Francisco was a slap not only on the face of Patriarch the "LH 2000 Hill" which calls for arbitration has been buried.

These legislators may not have thought so, but the call for arbitration this week by Labor Secretary Tobin and a federal judge in San Francisco was a slap not only on the face of Patriarch the "LH 2000 Hill" which calls for arbitration has been buried.

We are wondering if the legislature's un-American committee has an eye on Mr. Tobin's views, just because they did not come to the dance.

There is nothing more un-American (If we mean by that the striking down of the Constitution, the destruction of the rule of law and order, and the right to work to the people. From all appearances, our thumb twiddling legislators do not think it necessary to look beyond their noses at this time, they fail to tackle seriously the most critical problem facing the Territory, which is the strike of the miners. Thousands more are working part time.

Do we hear the legislators talking of any solution to the strike problem? Such discussion would be more appropriate at this time. Just this month tens of thousands of acres of Territorial land expired. Are the big ranchers and sugar companies going to lease the land again for 10 or 20 per cent per acre per year? Must the legislators get approval from Matson Navigation Co. and Continental Co. before they can do this? Do they think it necessary to look beyond their noses at this time, they fail to tackle seriously the most critical problem facing the Territory, which is the strike of the miners. Thousands more are working part time.

Do we hear the legislators talking of any solution to the strike problem? Such discussion would be more appropriate at this time. REMEMBER THE NAME OF THE TERRITORY

COLD WAR IN CHURCH

Remember the name of the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Haverkamp, a theologian of the Holy Trinity, St. Louis, Mo., who published a book in 1952 titled "Reconstruction of the Church in a Atomic Age." He warned that the church would have to adapt to the atomic age and that such adaptation would involve changing its structures and processes.

Dr. Haverkamp is a prominent figure in American religious life. He has served as president of the American Council of Churches and is a member of the National Council of Churches. He is also a member of the governing council of the Christian Church in America.

Dr. Haverkamp's book is a call to action for the church in the atomic age. He argues that the church must adapt to the atomic age in order to remain relevant and effective. He suggests that the church must change its structures and processes in order to meet the challenges of the atomic age.

The book is divided into two parts. The first part, "The Church in a Atomic Age," examines the impact of the atomic age on the church. It explores the implications of atomic weapons on the church's teachings and practices. The second part, "A Call to Action," outlines a vision for the church in the atomic age. It calls for a revision of church structures and processes to meet the challenges of the atomic age.

Dr. Haverkamp's book has been influential in shaping the church's response to the atomic age. It has been praised for its thought-provoking insights and its call to action. It has been cited as an important resource for those seeking to understand the church's role in the atomic age.
