Army Returns Body of Pfc. Kurosawa; Funeral Held; Peking Radio Says POW

In Pfc. Sumio Kurosawa's coffin, a message read: "Mother, don't cry. I am safe and sound."

The army says he died in action after many months, sent back home, Peking, China, in a prisoner of war cell. His serial number was 2070.

First Reported POW

But recently an AP operation was revealed by a Japanese commander that a Japanese radio broadcasted the news of Pfc. Kurosawa's return, which was interpreted as a prisoner of war by the Chinese authorities.

Peking's list of POWs is now maintained, and the Japanese list is kept by the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo. The American list is maintained by the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo.

HHC Hunts Facts On 100-Acre Lease: Campos To Defend His Big Island Tract

One hundred acres of disputed pasturage land, threatened legal action, and a widely reported criminal case are at the center of a dispute between local residents and the Hawaiian Homestead Commission.

Whether the blowup is averted, or barred to the public through the medium of a court, remains to be seen. The lease covers some 30 acres near the mouth of the Waiola River.

According to HHC sources, Mr. Campos and his son are expected to appear before the commission for the lease. Their attitude is that of a man who has nothing to lose.

Miyamoto, Soga In Hongojwan Fight

The statement of a hostile public, according to one of the leaders of the Hongojwan movement, may be the key to the success of the group which has been dominant in the Hongojwan community for the last several years.

The group is headed by a man who is expected to be the leading figure in the movement, and who has been named by the police and other authorities as the head of the group.

People Will Get Square Deal On Fares When They Run Buses—Mayor Wilson

Public reaction against the new increase in HRT bus fares in Honolulu was united, with Mayor John H. Wilson noting that it was "the right thing to do." He also acknowledged the difficulties faced by the bus company.

The council voted to raise the fares by 10 cents, and Mayor Wilson defended his decision, stating that the increase was "necessary to maintain the service level and ensure the financial health of the bus company."

World War III No Closer——Stalin

Soviet press and officials were searching for signs of a new round of war with America. The United States and the U.S.S.R. have already agreed to an armistice in the Korean War. The two countries are trying to work out a peace treaty. The armistice was signed in July of last year. The war in Korea has been going on for almost two years. The fighting has been very intense, and the casualties have been high. The majority of the fighting has been in the Korean peninsula.

American Taxpayers May Get Tired

While Truman was in Japan, he announced that he would run for reelection. The announcement was met with mixed reactions. Some people were happy, while others were disappointed. The election was held on November 6, 1945. Truman won the election, and he served two more terms as President. He was the 33rd President of the United States.

FBI Stooges Flop in LA Trial

The Justice Department, which has produced FBI agents and storefronts in a nearly two-month-old Smith Act trial, turned up this week in Daniel Scaretto, who pleaded out a Reptile. The trial is being conducted by the courtroom audience as a prominent Communist he has spent two weeks on the witness stand, testifying against other defendants.

The Los Angeles Times' story on the Scaretto trial said that the "confusion with which the charges were made" was caused by the time he finished his testimony. He added that the trial is no longer a simple matter of doing a favor for the government. He said that Mrs. Healy is not there, but that her husband, Mr. Healy, and his associates were among the witnesses. The reports are that the railroad said it paid Mrs. Healy, and had had the "IWO" meeting.

Carrying on his firing squad in the courtroom, Scaretto stood up in the witness stand and pointed out into the audience.

"That's right, that's where he is," he said, indicating that the man he fingered was a prominent Negro community leader. He added that the railroad had hired several Negro men as streetcar conductors, but that the railroad had no idea where they went.

"I don't know where he is," he said, adding that the railroad had had a preliminary hearing on the matter.

"Do you mean by that," when did the government start paying him, or when did he stop working for them?"

This question pointed up further the serious damage that the "IWO" men had to do their duties.

5. From a standpoint of safety, however, the Los Angeles fire department compares with the affects of the Los Angeles fire department. It is true that local fires are of the kind that go off in a fire in many cases where Los Angeles has not been considered or the efforts on containing the fire by the Los Angeles Fire Department are of a prime importance to the community. Fire chief T. L. Bouslog, who was on the stand, was quoted as having said on the stand.

3. Are relief workers, skilled in handling heavy rescue teams, given even a chance to be reduced when not employed by the defense? They cannot get into the fire in the same position as they are used to doing.

“When your house catches on fire, take it and set it on the fire yourself,” says Supervisor John Bues to Manuel Santos of Wailuku. Mr. Santos says he is a taxpayer and he and his neighborhood will fight their own fires. “The fire department is on the other end of town. There is no fire hydrant in his area,” he said.

Santos, who has a family of five, said he was on the alert and one day he and his friends would be fighting their own fires. “I don’t want to be a burden on the fire department,” he said.

Supervisor Manuel Rodrigues promised Santos that he would do something about a fire hydrant for the latter, but neighborhood meetings have been held in his office and Santos says he expects more promises, since this is an election year.

DAVID TRASK still has not made a financial accounting of the fund-raising Recreation Night which some Democratic petition clubs sponsored about a year ago. Meeting after meeting was called by the Democrats of 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th precinct clubs but he has not shown up at any of the meetings.

Three weeks ago, when another meeting was called, a special devise letter was sent to Trask. To make sure that he would be present a telephone call was made and he was promised to be at the meeting. But Trask did not show up.

Tom Tanigawa was treasurer for the fund-raising affair but he says he cannot account for a few dollars. Some Democrats made dona-

The Corporations vs. Harry Bridges

From Winchman To Militant West Coast Labor Leader and a National Figure Who Has Become a Symbol and a Target

By RICHARD SADULY

NEW YORK CITY—In the spring of 1934, a weary man in his early 30's who for 12 years had walked the American-Hawaiian docks in the port of San Francisco. He worked sailingly in a gang which handled sugar from sugar-cane plantations in Hawaii and now owned San Francisco Bay in the great Golden Gate and Bay bridges.

The men's name was Harry Ronen Bridges. He was Australian-born, had been a seaman, but not yet become an American citizen. For 12 years he had worked as a longshoreman in San Francisco. He was tough, quick-witted and aggressive, but he had strong ideas about the rights of working men to organize.

Bridges Becomes Key Figure

He was known to his friends on piers, in bars and eating places, as any man who worked on the waterfront might be. And that was all. To the outside world he was known that the men in the longshoremen's union, Howard Sorensen, Ralph North and Laslo Reiner, had followed off a general strike. On July 9 a mass funeral procession took over Market St., through the heart of San Francisco. Sorensen led a march of 4,000 men and women in the parade. The picket lines had been broken.

Throughout all the 19 years he had worked as a longshoreman, Bridges' name was never in the newspapers. But his effectiveness as a labor leader was considerable. The unions did not bother to agitate him. He had no clambers for his leadership.

In May 1944, the West Coast longshoremen went on strike. San Francisco was the center of the strike and the unknown dockers, Harry Bridges, became the key figure in the rank-and-file committee which had the leaders. On July 7 the shipowners, backed by slow-mills, tried to open the strike. The strike was almost broken when Howard Sorensen, Ralph North and Laslo Reiner, had followed off a general strike. On July 9 a mass funeral procession took over Market St., through the heart of San Francisco. Sorensen led a march of 4,000 men and women in the parade. The picket lines had been broken.

The strike was a turning point in West Coast labor history. For the longshoremen, it was the winning of the labor hall and an end to the hated handshake, which left each man uncertain of work from day to day.

Stop Work In France

S. M. Magazine (Alb.)—About 200 unique longshoremen who were employed in the construction of the Asiatic port, stopped work when they discovered that the material was being used for war materials. They paraded back and forth on the dock, shouting defiance at an import of U.S. arms to be shipped.

Frankly Speaking

By FRANK MARSHALL DAVIS

EISENHOWER'S IDEAS

I have no doubt that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower would make a good President. But we would have to go back several years to find the time his ideas belong to a departed age.

Our huge corporations and trusts have never before been so gigantic and strong as they are today. Profits are as high as his economic forecasters say they are. The Wall Street boom is not a phase of Wall Street's cyclical condition. It is a trend, not only on this continent but in the world, that is the result of the post-war boom on the continent.

And yet, despite these obvious facts, the President-elect has publicly stated that there is no necessity for us to change our government, that we need not go back to the free enterprise system. Does he mean genuine freedom from the iniquitous system of the trusts and robber barons? Does he mean genuine freedom from the plutocratic dictatorship of the dollar?

He has had two precedents in America, but that day is dead and buried. This was during the period when there was genuine competition between enterprises, before corporations either crushed or bought out their smaller competitors, and our government, instead of making price agreements with the remaining giants. It is an insult to the intelligence of the people to suggest that this is the same America.

If Truman, who was a realist in administration, has retreated and moved away from this position, it is a great step forward.

Not Even Lip Service from Eisenhower

The President's policies on race relations are no far cry from his economic policies. Already we are far ahead of the rest of the world because our government's policies are based, in large measure, on our democratic principles.

Mr. Davis
