Weird Firing For Food and Butcher

Raymond Ching, the No. 2 store meat department manager, was fired last July a few days after Maurice J. Sullivan, manager of the Foodland Supermarket on School and Lilikoi Sts., was forced to file for bankruptcy protection of the Foodland management company. The new owners, Sullivan and his associates, have taken over the management of the store, which has been closed for several weeks.

Ching, who had been with Foodland for 20 years, said he was surprised when he was notified of his firing. He had been a regular employee at the store since it opened in 1954 and had been with Sullivan for the past 10 years.

Ching said he was not aware of any problems with his performance and that he had always been able to get along well with the other employees. He said he was disappointed that he was not given an opportunity to improve his performance before being fired.

Sullivan said that the decision to fire Ching was based on the need to cut costs and improve the store's operations. He said that Ching had been responsible for some of the store's recent problems and that he was not confident that he could improve the situation.

Ching plans to file a complaint against Sullivan and Foodland with the state's Department of Labor and Industrial Relations. He said he was hoping to get back his job and that he had been told by a lawyer that he had a good chance of winning.

Ching has been married for 25 years and has three children. He said he had been planning to retire in a few years but that the firing had put his plans on hold. He said he was hoping to find a new job soon and that he was not sure what he would do if he could not.

Chin Ho--Financial Wizard of Smith St.

Chin Ho, a well-known banker and businessman, has been elected to the Hawaii State Senate. He is a long-time friend of the late Governor John D. Burns and has been active in many local and national community organizations.

Ho has been active in the banking industry for many years and has been involved in numerous community organizations. He is a member of the Hawaii State Bar Association and has served on the boards of several local banks.

Chin Ho was born in Honolulu in 1932 and attended the University of Hawaii. He received his law degree from the University of San Francisco in 1957.

He is married to the former Miss Virginia Ching and has two children, a son and a daughter.

Maluhia Committee Decides For UPW Worker; Asks To Restore Food, Room

Dr. Thomas E. Moseman, supervising physician of Maluhia Home and head of the C-G health department, called a meeting of all the workers at the home last week to discuss their grievances.

The workers had been denied food and room for the past few days, and Moseman told them that they were entitled to these benefits.

The workers had been on strike for several days, demanding that they be allowed to eat and sleep in the home.

Moseman said that he had spoken with the hospital administration and that they had agreed to meet with the workers to discuss their grievances.

The meeting took place last night, and the workers were promised that food and room would be restored.

The workers were pleased with the decision and said that they would continue to fight for their rights.

Talla Raye Still Eludes Dragnet

Talla Raye, who has been on the run for several months, was still missing yesterday as the police continued their search for her.

The police said that they had been unable to find Raye despite a massive search involving several thousand police officers.

Alfred W. Jensen, proprietor of the Tellin Inn, said that Raye had not been seen since the day before yesterday.

Jensen said that Raye was a regular customer of his inn and that he had been surprised to hear that she was missing.

Jensen said that he had been unable to contact Raye's family and that he did not know where she was going to go.

The police said that they were still searching for Raye and that they hoped to find her soon.

A new crackdown on prostitution has been announced by the police department. The crackdown will involve the use of undercover officers and the use of new technology to detect and arrest prostitutes.

Furthermore, authorities say that they have received numerous complaints from the public about prostitution in the city, and they are taking steps to address these issues.

Call houses are being reported to operate as they do on the Mainland, offering a variety of services, including a new phase of prostitution, and this is a development largely responsible for the rise in the cost of living in the city.

The Singing Stevedore

EMILIO Y. LOMACTUD, better known as "Oreo" to his longshore brothers at Kāhului, Maui, has plans of appearing on television when he takes his three-week paid vacation next year. He began working as a longshoreman in 1956 and has contributed his talent to entertainment programs of various organizations. He writes that he will appear on a Filipino Program TV show. On one of his trips to Honolulu, he sang on the Rev. Emilio C. Yadao's ILWU Filipino program, accompanied by orchestra leader Benny Dacoss.

Editor, Honolulu Record:

On behalf of the Honolulu County American Society, I should like to thank you for your cooperation in our recent Diabetes Detection Drive. Your newspaper articles publicizing this drive was a direct result of many people becoming aware of this service and consequently following up by seeing their doctors or asking for the diabetes testing strips at their local drugstores.

We are indeed grateful to you for this excellent publicity.

Very sincerely yours,

Editor, Honolulu Record:

Thank you for the fair and factual news item, Hawai'i Pay for Teachers Far Below that on West Coast, that appeared in the Thursday, December 2 issue of the Honolulu Record.

This Association appreciates this impartial, yet sympathetic coverage that the Honolulu Record has always given to this Association's efforts to obtain professional salaries for Hawai'i's public school teachers.

Sincerely yours,
James R. McDonough
Executive Secretary
Strip Teaser Gave Cops Lively Christmas

The Key and Whistle club made up of police reserve officers has a Christmas party every year, as do many other organizations, but more is likely in these days to be as lively as the one held one year at Ala Moana Park, while W. A. Gabrielson was still chief of police, and when regulars belonged to the Key and Whistle as well as reserves.

According to oldtimers who remember that one, liquor flowed freely and the big event of the evening was a strip tease dance. Sidewalks included a hot dispute between the night watchmen of the park and a number of policemen responsible for throwing beer bottles into the fountain and arguments between regular policemen and reserves.

Oldtimers say that party was the beginning of a move which made the Key and Whistle Club essentially a reserve officers' organization.

Friction Came Out

The regulars were local boys, oldtimers recall, who had considerable contempt for the loud bank clerks and office workers who "played cop" in their spare time. At the time they concealed such contempt, but under the influence of a certain amount of Christmas liquor, the regulars spoke their minds and showed considerable inclination to back up their words with their fists.

It was not what the bank clerks and office workers expected. It would be hard to say what the liquor commodification thought of the moves, but Gabrielson's fastest didn't worry. They served liquor that Christmas over the improvised bars as they pleased.

The night watchman is reported to have taken umbrage, first at the beer and liquor bottles thrown into the fountain—then at the fact that drinking was being carried on openly in a public park where nothing like that had been authorized.

Trouble With Watchman

Some say the night watchman got a licking for trying to enforce his own law on the roaming officers of the law. Others say the custodian wasn't intelligent enough to make that distinction.

"Where'd the liquor come from?" you know damn well where it came from," says an oldtimer. "It was all donated by bars and liquor stores and dealers."

Stripper Popularity

The strip-lease dance is still remembered with a bit of nostalgia—she really had a shape. And she had a technique. Beginning slowly, she exposed her chassis bit by bit until finally she had nothing left but a fig leaf.

"I don't know what held that fig leaf on," says one who was there, "but after a while nothing held it on at all."

Most of her dance had taken place squarely in front of Chief Gabrielson and the chief seemed to be enjoying the act, but not more than the other assembled officers.

"Who is that girl?" they were asking. "Where does she come from?"

Finally, someone shouted up an imposteur and, perhaps, improper suggestion to the chief and his head snapped over his shoulders, his gimlet-eyed stare spearing the terra-cotta figure.

"I'll take care of you later, son," he snapped bawdily.

But it was a threat he never carried out.

Guest Who Disapproved

There was one guest, however, who wasn't afraid to tell the chief what he thought of that show, and what he thought must have strained his professional vocabulary. That guest was the late Father Bray, famous Island priest.

"Father Bray was really a man about it," recalls an oldtimer. "He sat through the whole thing and then he went up and let the chief have it. And I mean, he told them what he thought of it. There was never another party like that."

Cops aren't the same nowadays, of course—of at least not quite.
Ideas from DPW Started Johnny Wilson Making Hawaiian Brick

38 years ago. It's the business of making homes out of Hawaiian earth.

That's the way Johnny Wilson remembered it when he first conceived the idea. It was during World War II when housing was scarce. Wilson was head of the Territorial department of welfare and a good number of the welfare clients were living in ramshackle structures on the site of the present Mayor Wright housing project.

Adobe Suggested For DPW

"I knew the project was going to be delayed," recalls Wilson, "and we had a million dollar surplus in the department funds. Still rent for welfare clients was costing the Territory $20,000 a month. I thought about the problem and I remembered how the old Hawaiians used to make good houses out of adobe."

It made good sense to Johnny Wilson to take some of the low surplus and build homes for the welfare clients to save the rentals and provide better homes...at least until the war emergency was over.

He submitted a plan to Gov. Joseph Poindexter, but the mayors never got any farther.

Realizing that local production would eliminate one of the biggest items in building--transportation of materials from Mainland--Wilson set out to interest each local capital as he could, and before long the Wilsonite plant emerged.

praised highly, despite difficulties, both by home-buyers and by those who used it in public construction. "Problems have come mainly from the unprincipled nature of those running the operation."

"They didn't do the best they could," says Nichols. "There was no one who made the effort to make the house." The operation is in the hands of Fred Nichols, a young man who's been in the brick-making industry and whose father was a brick-maker before him.

Nichols has moved to the Territory from Colorado to become a resident and to make Wilsonite his business. He says, "I can't think of anything I'd rather be doing."

In addition to Nichols, Johnny Wilson expects to give a lot more attention, himself, to the operation of the Wilsonite plant in the future. As soon as he leaves the mayor's office, his full attention will be directed toward making more and better brick for Hawaii's home-builders.

"Thus far," he says, "I think we have only scratched the surface of the possibilities."

"I don't think there's any future in the lumber business, not in this country."

We wish the Season's Best to Our Friends.

Before God...

PARTICIPANTS in the Hawaiian assembly of the World Council of Churches may not have been aware that they were being watched for subversive conduct. But they were. According to Religious News Service, Senator Jenner's subcommittee on subversive activity, with the FBI on the job, determined to see that no dangerous thought escaped from the ecumenical meeting, or if it did see that it was properly punished.

The RNS dispatch said that the Senate and House committees had undercover agents at Evanton and that the FBI had assured a congressman that it would keep the iron curtain delegates under surveillance as long as they are in this country. Senator Jenner's subcommittee, it says, report on the importance of the rice curtain that is now considered on things said by the iron curtain churchmen, while Congressman Vade paid more attention to speeches by other men.

An illuminating sidelight is the statement that "the House committee will rely mainly on the evidence of what one observer described as 'right-thinking' ministers, who will be present at the assembly as observers..." What a business for a committee of the United States Congress to be in—spring on a world assembly of churches of Christ!

When Santa Got Gripped...

There are times when even Santa Claus uses rough language...

An oldtimer recalls such an occasion a few years ago when unemployable, elderly men were used locally by a charitable organization to dress as Santa Claus and ring bells to solicit donations for the needy.

One of these, stationed on King St., attracted the attention of children as well as grownups with his highly spirited behavior and by the manner in which the front porch kept slipping down in his Santa Claus suit.

The attrs merely laughed and passed on, but the children took more direct action. Instead of helping Santa they poked and prodded at his pudgy, exasperating his problem more and more.

The September issue of Business Conditions, published by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, reports that the unemployment has gained noticeably as job opportunities declined.

Misuses of Religion As

By REV. STEPHEN H. FRITCHMAN

Let me begin today by saying in serious terms that the prevalent conviction in religion frightens me dreadfully. Christianity has, of late acquired some fellow travellers who are the death of it. Radio entertainers like Rich Station and Zebby Cantor are now setting us to go to Sunday School and say our prayers. Congress has set aside a special room off its main chambers where religious services are held daily. We have added “Under God” to our seal, Our Flag, and our Pledge of Allegiance, and the power of positive thinking break all known sales records for religious books. As we increase our fire power in theosophy, we increase our united front with the Almighty. Billy Graham speaks to forty thousand citizens in a Berlin stadium and brings his total audience for his European journey to several hundred thousand persons. Almost every Hollywood film has a homespun priest in the cast of characters. Bishop Fulton J. Sheen is the unquestioned star performer on television, in 1964. Post-war church congregations from Europe continue to baffle, not just the architects busy and builders and carpenters, electricians and stone masons at their tasks to the tune of many millions of dollars. Every vial in Christendom Europe continues to baffle, not just the architects busy and builders and carpenters, electricians and stone masons at their tasks to the tune of many millions of dollars. Every vial in Christendom Europe continues to baffle, not just the architects busy and builders and carpenters, electricians and stone masons at their tasks to the tune of many millions of dollars. Every vial in Christendom Europe continues to baffle, not just the architects busy and builders and carpenters, electricians and stone masons at their tasks to the tune of many millions of dollars.

Not Alone In These Fears

Unless all that I have learned over the past forty years is wrong, terribly wrong, we are seeing a flux, a frenetic and feverish revival of religion that can lead to a shattering revolution later, and overwhelming contempt for religion a few years from now. Maps are already open on the mantle mode prophecy. This sermon, a brief summer homily to a group of friends, will be filed away and you may recall me of it ten or twenty years from now. I am being very flat-footed and uncompromising in my prediction: much of this recent “return to God,” this post-war genuflection toward the altar, will bring us to no good end, if it is of the lip, and not of the heart. It is for all religion in cold war years, and we will live to regret it. Christianity and Judaism are both mapped by their increasing respectability, and many people are at a loss. Do not get me wrong, the churches today for the wrong reasons. Religion is being misused. If I am wrong, let there be a heresy trial; but I do not think I am alone in this.

Religion is being used today as a means to unworthy ends, especially orthodox religion. Willingly or unwillingly, clergymen, church members, church officials are compromising the very essence of the religion in order to pay the good fellow, to be on the popular side, to support the prevailing tribal customs which are in danger of moral undermining. We are living in a different world, and I honestly believe that this is a great revival, a wonderful march forward, a cause for trumpets and halleyeagles, before I finish this morning I shall speak of some of the simple and positive functions of religion as I understand them, and yet let me give a few examples of this current misuse of religion which so disturbs me today.

We Are In Grave Danger

The past 100 years have been years of astonishing and accelerated advancements in scientific knowledge in many fields including medicine and health. Yet during these years much religion has turned its back, and spurned the new advances. Christian Science, Science of Mind, Unity, and all sects with scores of thousands of adherents defy the doc-

It If Police State Comes To U.S.

But in 1964 the greatest misuse of religion is none of these things I have so far mentioned: it is the accursed campaign to make religion the partner of reaction in business, in government, and in culture. This is a very ancient policy of the American Imperialists, a policy of making the Roman Catholic Church the back door of the Kaiser. The bishops of Franco’s Spain could teach us much. The priests of the Pius X Society of 3000 years ago along the river Nile could teach us much. But the people of God are not ready to learn these dubious lessons. This is a momentous gamble. We are seeing a very bold effort, an effort to pin all organized religion on the side of conservative institutions, including our government, our industrial and commercial corporations, our controlled educational systems, our private organized communications—press, TV, radio and film.

If public relations can make a nation religious by campaigns of skilled manipulation, we shall soon be on a new crusade which will dwarf the crusades of Frederick Barbarossa, Richard I and Philip Augustus in the middle ages. And beyond the realm of manipulation that we shall blot out reason, stifles, imprison the conscience and enter into a new and frightful theology for untold years of centuries. To do this, however, it would have to sell itself as the dream of life, the way of life, and in a recent statement of the Pope that he would like to see the Catholic Church become the center of the new world order. The evidence for this major effort to line up religion on the side of reaction unfortunately lies abroad in public pronouncements. In Dr. Fosdick’s famous pulpit in Riverside Church, New York, on June 27th, Dr. Ivar Helstron, minister of education at the school of church, in 1964, declared: “I am one of the advocates of social change, all attempts to extend the scope of democracy, or to work for peace outside of narrowly and officially approved limits, are suspect in some areas of our national life. Many years ago, he added, “I am an advocate of the way of life of the so-called ‘Catholic Worker,’ the Mehlisau business men who are seeking to drive into the wilderness all preachers of the social gospel. A similar group of large industry executives in Texas has organized to purify the pulpits of that great state of all modern preachers with any great a dedication to the Old Testament prophets, the Sermon on the Mount and the First Amendment to our Constitution.

Washington Said Otherwise

President Eisenhower has already signed a law making it obligatory for citizens saluting the flag, in public, to repeat the pledge of allegiance. The pledge of allegiance is an affront to liberty and justice for all. The project was initiated by the Knights of Columbus and carried into the Senate by a Protestant, Senator Halleck and a Protestant, and carried into the House by Louis Rabaut, a Roman Catholic. Mr. Rabaut has also worked diligently to get religious phrases onto postage stamps, and onto censuses, and into our public schools. Senator Ralph Flanders, a Protestant from Vermont, has introduced an amendment to the Partner of Reaction

Constitution which would read “This nation de-vourly recognizes the authority and law of Jesus Christ, Saviour and ruler of nations through whom are bestowed the blessings of Almighty God.” Thus would our present Congress seek to make us a “Christian” nation, utterly ignoring George Washington’s sage and simple declaration: “The government of the United States is not, in any sense, a Christian government.”
“Religion” is the fabric of Jefferson and Madison are now the target of those bitterly hostile to religious freedom.

The Same Congress Which...

Let me point out that this legislation of religious conventionality cannot be discussed in the Senate in a simple, straightforward way.
It would mean that the same Congress which seeks to profess religion and to broaden the borders of its gar-mants and enlarge its phalanxes and repeat its pretensions of goodwill and about its aims before all mankind is the same legislative body which even many conservative newspapers are calling the “give-away Congress.” We have seen our off-shore oil turned over to the states to be used as a weapon in the next presidential campaign. The “give-away” of atomic energy
production to private business set a new record in American history for the surrender of the people’s collective
wealth. “The Smith Act, the McCarran Act, the Taft-Hartley Act were written by church-going Congressmen.

At the same time as the Atomic Energy debate went on in Congress, the Subversive Activities Control Board questioned day after day a prominent Episcopalian clergyman from Brooklyn, New York, inquiring into his social and political opinions with excessive zeal. It wanted to know above all else whether Dr. William Howard Melish thought it possible for a man to be both a Christian and a Communist. He answered, of course, that under certain conditions it was indeed possible. The following day this opinion of Dr. Melish’s was treated as some-ting little short of lunacy or treason. Yet Dr.
Melish could have said, as Dr. Joseph Fletcher, author of Episcopalianism, and a great jurist, did later, that some of this generation’s greatest and most respected religious leaders have made precisely the same judgment. The greatest living Protestant theologian in Europe, Dr. Kari
Barth, made the statement several years ago.
Archbishop William Temple of London said the same thing shortly before his death. I am happy to say that Dr. John Howard Latourette, our Ungarian minister in Brooklyn, wrote to the Eagle, and had published, his confirmation of Dr. Melish’s statement. He said what is commonplace to any informed person, that there are many Christians of an intellectual and intellectual sneer at the whole concept of Christian religion. In Europe, in the United States, in Russia, in China there is a whole generation that is not religious in the traditional sense but nevertheless has a deep sense of the religious needs of its age. I quote in full: “I am coming to know that a great many of the younger generations are finding religion in a new form, one that is different from the religion of the past, but that is not less important. I believe that we must adapt ourselves to this new form of religion.”

The present drive by our Congressmen and some of our business leaders to regiment religion is a tribute, inverted and awkward though
it may be. I am saying today that it is a misuse of religion to make Christianity compulsory
and conventionally respectable, the hallmark of the safe and sound citizen, which can be used to get us out of the great moral crisis of the present day. Religion is not for the common man, but for the man who is different, who is sure,
and who is committed, and who is ready to face
the world as it is.

A Tide Proves Stronger

Believe me, there are a lot of us ministers who are troubled about the effort to make the discharged and the dismissed, because they are not at the highest bidder. Dr. Robert McCracken, director of New York preacher, stated this danger the earlier day when he said in a sermon reported in the New York Times: “For too many religion is a spare-time interest, something which is added to accepted and expected as a part of life, so that it cannot be taken away from the individual and be used as a weapon in the next presidential campaign. The “give-away” of atomic energy
production to private business set a new record in American history for the surrender of the people’s collective
wealth. “The Smith Act, the McCarran Act, the Taft-Hartley Act were written by church-going Congressmen.

gion is a tribute, inverted and awkward though
it may be. I am saying today that it is a mis-
use of religion to make Christianity compulsory
and conventionally respectable, the hallmark of
the safe and sound citizen, who can be trusted to get out of line, who will periodically come before the various Committees on Un-American Activities and ask for a license to exist, and be given a bill of health sealed and certified that no independent thought has tak-

made into a high gloss for painting the conventional pattern of American success. The principles of Jesus, of Moses and Isaiah, of Bud-han and Buddha, or of Confucius and Confucius
and Confucius, of Mahatma Gandhi and Rev.
William Temple, of Harry Ward and Walter Luithlenbusch have entered into the souls of millions; and it will take more than Whitaker and Whittaker, and Weyr and Weyrism, and Senator Flanders or Congressman Rabaut to exhilarate them. There is something intangible, something that defies control and indoctrination and it is the living, growing religion.
These misuses of religion are all forms of undeniable, but they are never completely an-chered. The mooring chains snap. A tide proves stronger than the toughest hawser.

Religion Helps Us To...

Religion deals primarily with the present, with today, with your living consciousness, and mine, and my neighbors 400 miles away.
With Walt Whitman I want to help men affirm life and its goodness when the hushes of fear and habit are removed. Religion is the power to do with the world what we wish. It is the best tool in the field of personal relations. To do in one day that a thousand opportunities remain unused when sleep falls on us at the day’s end. Religion, rightly used, shows us how to reach beyond the self, how to become the self, to reach beyond the self, how to become the self, and how to avoid the frustration of wishing we were geniuses or kings or millionaires.
Religion helps us to be at home in the universe
—we are not just the sum of our personal aptic realm beyond the grave. Religion helps us scale our expectancies to our highest possibilities.

Religion has to do with accepting and enjoying our responsibilities; it is the understanding of our shared destiny as human beings; it deals with clothing and housing our families;
it has to do with a decent accomplishment in our jobs. However humble they may be or however exalted religion is related to honest workmanship, to the integrity of our word, to seeing ahead of time the need for patience and love
when others are nay-pressed.

Religion Is Your Resolution

I mention these examples because so much religion is obscured by layers and layers of disguise, of ornamental and irrelevant decoration. I am afraid that we have been so badly and disoriented in the confusion by adding to the importation that religion is something of the past, of tradition, of authorized versions of truth from a thousand years ago. We need to be ever so sellingly alert to keep children and adults alike
from thinking of religion as the Ten Commandments, or the axioms of Confucius, or the beatitudes of the Galilean. These are good and useful lessons, but not the basis of any modern religion.
A thousand missionaries in chas-tles and Geneva gowns and reversed collars are standing in pulpits this morning, and too often confusing the idea that religion is a revelation from some men dead thousands of years before Magellan sailed the Straits. Religion is not a Papal Bull, nor a decision of a Pope, nor a sermon of a Confucius, nor a sermon
of a Confucius, nor a sermon of a Confucius.
It is your resolution to enjoy the present hour,
to make peace with your neighbor; it is your laughter at the comedy of life right now; it is your prophetic vision of human possibilities and magnificence of this day, 1954.

There is more truth in the world at this hour than in the days of Jesus or Moses or Thomas Aquinas. Let us cease our worship of

The Misuses of Religion Today

antiquity and expect great things of ourselves and our living friends. Let us correct our prevailing madness, our lust for bombarding our fellow world citizens into fragments that our lordship of the earth may not be disputed. Let us rejoice at the new knowledge that saves human life, so that ten or twenty years are added to the life span of our parents and our friends. Let us cultivate our gardens with blooms never known to Tamerlane or Midas. Let us rejoice that no civilization can again be built on slavery as were the empires of the Mongols and the Romans, the Egyptians and the Turks, and that recent one which collapsed with the fall of Richmond. Let us rejoice that America can no longer hide from view the unfinished liberation of her own colored millions. Religion is not the post, it is the advancing present. From pole to pole, at every parallel, revolutions break out when freedom is denied. Neither cardinals nor premiers nor merchant princes can prevent it. In spite of Belsen and Auschwitz, in spite of napalm and atomic fire, in spite of drugs for the brain and nips for the body, men have tasted liberty of mind, the glory of self-direction, the happiness of an open future for themselves and, even more, for their children gathered about them in the home. Religion is immediate and at this hour. It is measured now, before this sun sets. It is a daily opportunity to be human, to be erect, to plan with expectation of accomplishment. It includes the nourishing of the body, the eradication of disease, the assertion of the unchecked mind, the treaty of good faith with men across the seven seas in a world where none are aliens, none foreigners born, none devils, none angels, all just men and women like ourselves. It is to give such religion a chance that we say “Burn on the purple heels of misus the misuses of religion and burn them for all time. Expose them, explain them, name them, ridicule and laugh at them, but in the end destroy them before they make us captive, before we are transformed into beasts or slaves. Then, and only then can religion be the liberation of your soul, and the liberation of mankind.”

Ching explained that for two years he had asked for more men since he ran a 60-foot meat counter with five workers.

"I asked Sullivan for more men and I asked Charlie Brubek, meat department supervisor, too. They told me, 'You can do it, Ray, you can do it.' They told me to work the men longer hours," Ching explained.

Punched Time Cards

"What manager who knows his business does not know how many hours his employees work. We all punched time cards every day. As manager of the department I had to work out the hours scheduled and they gave me orders and they approved my schedule," he continued.

Ching now works at Kailua Super Market.

After Ching was fired, the meat department manager of the Market City store was transferred to fill the vacant at the No. 2 store. In selecting the meat department manager at the Market City store, the management invited the meat cutters to the Witteria for dinner and put the selection of the manager to a ballot of employees.

Although Ching was ousted for working his men long hours and working them too hard, which Sullivan said he does not believe in, to date Foodland meat cutters have not been paid for the overtime they had put in overtime which Sullivan said he knew nothing about. The hours have been cut to 48 a week.

"We Were Glad"

Ching says he does not care what union organizes Foodland, but he wants to see it organized. Recently, in answer to the AFL organizing drive, a large ad bearing the names of almost all Foodland employees appeared in the paper saying they did not want a union. It was said employees paid for the ad but the RECORD learned that employees were told to sign a paper with the ad message and money was paid.

Sutherland says Lawrence Chung, an employe, handled the ads and he believes while some employees paid for the ad, they did not pay for the mailing.

Ching's resignation as a butcher, said "He was an excellent man. We have nothing to say against him as a butcher."

about twice as much meat at his store as any other Foodland meat department. They learned them for months and years of abuse, but when they tried to fire them they killed their books, if not directly, of overworking them to win credit from the management.

Had Asked For Men

Ching received a phone call from Sullivan that workday following the decision and went to the manager's office. Sullivan told him that the meat cutters did not like him and that he overworked them.

Sullivan said he did not know workers spent such long hours in the store.

Ching says hours ranged from 77 per week in the early days to 87 hours more recently. During anniversary sales, they worked about 160 hours in two weeks and Ching told the RECORD, he himself put in about 90 hours a week.

"Sullivan wouldn't listen to me," Ching said this week. "I was a guinea pig. They sacrificed me."

SPORTS TIDBITS FROM HERE AND THERE

Sports citizens, led by Masaio Ataya, deputy superintendent of schools, have in resolution to the 1955 legislature requested an $80,000 athletic plant for community and school use to be located on the site of the Honolulu High School. This project included a combination gym and auditorium, and a swimming tank and hopes for the time being to tax some of the basic needs to run a physiological education program in the school. While we have no quarrel with the plans we want to remind some of the citizens in that area that there are enough swimming pools in the Waikiki and Punahou area while the west section of Maui, which centers in Lahaina, has a single pool. We don't know how some of the pork barrel is going to be distributed but the public invited citizens of Maui should give serious consideration to some of the basic needs there and believe that the area of concentration should not be in one particular locality.

One of the most astounding things that happened recently is the Ralph King deal when he asked for a reduction in his salary adjustment to about $25,000 to $20,000. While the committee on reappraisal after reasoning substantial allegations of malpractices in revenue has not received a response from the source. About 14 players, officials, and others are in the majority and the official ruling on the matter will come after the NFL receives the report. These negotiations will not add up to the gross profit of football because of the terrific pressure of winning football throughout the country.

WITH ODDS RIDING ON BOBO OLSON at 4 to 1 the champ of the middle won over the French challenger, Pierre Langlois in the 15th round when referee ordered a stop to the fight. Bobo Olson, the world's number one middleweight, has been in several tournaments. He has climbed up to 4 to 1, then the "smart boys" consider the challenger not worthy, although he has been many instances of the underdog winning at underdog odds.

NEWS STORIES CARRY DINNER party of a fiasco. Joey Giardello is participating in. Sounds like Giardello took part in a shagging of a desert station attendant. The attendant says that Joey came back after an argument with his wife and attempted to kick the attendant. It is hard to believe that the punch needed the help of 12 other men.

WE UNDERSTAND LAS VEGAS OPEN not recognized by the PGA under the laws of Horton Smith because of the fact that the purse comes from the bankroll of some of the gaming houses in Las Vegas. However, this Open is well attended with even officials of the LPGA taking part. Another reason why tend this big one just like any other tournament and try to get the play from the money just like any other tourney. The winners have never questioned where the money comes from either.

Christmas and New Year Greetings.

1954 was a year of encouragement with their majority of voters expressing their desires for a change for the better.

In 1955 progress must be made with an alert public making their demands for a better deal felt strongly.

Best wishes for progress in Hawaii and everywhere!
of that area to its operations. Arizona's forests, which people may have negotiated for the last 20 years, are now being negotiated again. It is possible to buy the land from Capital Investment at a price not exactly comparable to what it had offered the Robinson Estate. Yet, the corporation is willing to negotiate for it, if the buyer can afford the cash price. Nothing is available, but it seems reasonable to assume that if the Robinson Estate can negotiate for the $2,000,000 in capital in addition to the $1,000,000 already paid, the Robinson Estate will be in a position to negotiate for the land.

While AmFic sent out feelers and the Robinson Estate re-negotiated the purchase of land, the Big Five has, at least in part, been re-negotiating the way land is purchased. The sale of the land is still being negotiated, but the Robinson Estate has given in to the Big Five, which has offered to purchase the land for $2,000,000 in addition to the $1,000,000 already paid. The Robinson Estate has, in effect, given in to the Big Five, which has offered to purchase the land for $2,000,000 in addition to the $1,000,000 already paid.

He is reported to have given po litical leaders under the impression that Talca Raye has left the islands, but police were not told of the change of report. There has still been no word on the subject of the "Willy-virgin." For a couple of weeks before last week Talca Raye had exhib ited at a side-show at the poi sies, giving shocking accounts of sex and making certain personal demon strations to the occa sion. This week Talca Raye was arrested and charged with the charge against Francis and was eventually convicted, only against Talca Raye which has never been served.

Cons Took Several Looks At Talca Raye, but reported in last week's RECORD was that police officers, including Capt. Herbert Cockett and Sgt. Bobby Vierra of the vice squad, visited Talca Raye's quarters at the house and without making any arrest. Police made several visits, once even after a scene of fights, but no arrest came while Talca raye was nowhere.

The show had reportedly been discontinued for several days prior to the warrant served on Jenkin Raye and the show was reported to be in the process of closing down due to the exhibit A, the reason that the Talca Raye, himself, or hitherto.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

(from page 5) Crimination continues to dom ine. The big money behind the big business is the real cause of the continued existence of the Big Business. The big business is slowly taking over the economy of the country, and the big business is slowly taking over the economy of the country.

But when we tear down more barriers, we are not actually undermining the stability of the country. The barriers of disguised ownership and disguised power are not the real problems. The real problems are the problems of the system that produces them. The big business is the real problem, and the big business is slowly taking over the economy of the country.

HOLIDAY GREETINGS!
The Gift of Conscience

By Frank Marshall Davis

If I had the power to bestow one gift upon the American people this Christmas, it would be the desire, as a nation, to carry through a program because it was right and democratic.

We have deteriorated into a land of moral eunuchs. Our collective conscience is flabby as a jellyfish. Somehow during the war years we have lost the ability to do something because it is unpopular; instead we have done it primarily to silence Communist criticism. Recently the war has announced its next major objective, one of basic importance to the economic welfare of all working people. But instead of pushing for this program purely on its merit, it seems that the guaranteed annual wage be granted "to silence the Red propaganda about the status of workers in a capitalist country."

Early this year the U. S. Supreme Court handed down its historic decision outlawing Jim Crow practices. It was the only possible way that fits in with our ideals of democracy. But instead of appeasing this move as one giving basic rights to all workers, newspaper publishers and officials saw it primarily as an "answer to Communists who point to race prejudice in America."

How Be We So Degenerate?

We have reached a point where a Negro way Hawaii should have statehood. We deserve better than the inferior, colonial status which is presently ours. But in 1976 the 13 colonies had only one problem that fits in with our ideals of democracy. But instead of appeasing this move as one giving basic rights to all workers, newspaper publishers and officials saw it primarily as an "answer to Communists who point to race prejudice in America."

There are many other instances in which we refuse to take a stand purely on democratic principles because we are so degenerate that we are unwilling to do what is right unless it can be used to "pull one of the Communists' propre guets teeth."

If it is a fact that we have reached the low point where we are willing to extend democracy only in the cold war, then let it be to the best interests of labor, ethnic minorities, and the world's people to see to it that what Washington calls the "Communist menace" remains a menace.

I Would Be More Thankful If...

Since the end of World War II there have been more than 50 rights granted to minority and non-white groups, yet since the Civil War. In addition to the banning of segregation in public schools, the Supreme Court has banned restrictive covenants. The courts have also prohibited discriminatory accommodations in interstate travel; Washington has done away with the white-only policy in restaurants and theaters. Negroes have competitive on relief; they are no longer segregated in the South; the armed forces have gone a long way toward eliminating the racial separation which made a mockery of our democracy; today Negroes run for office in some parts of the South where not long ago they could not vote.

If it were mere coincidence that these changes have come about during a period when the U. S. and the Soviet Union were locked in a bitter struggle for ideological supremacy? Did it just happen that the darker-skinned peoples of the Americas have been pushed, just as in the case of the black man, just as in the case of the black man, just as in the case of the black man, to the back of the line when Washington was busy soothing support from the darker people of Asia and the Pacific? It seems that the Washington administration has moved to the dark without a thought about the implications of its policy.

There is another reason for this situation. Since the end of World War II, there have been more than 50 rights granted to minority and non-white groups, yet since the Civil War. In addition to the banning of segregation in public schools, the Supreme Court has banned restrictive covenants. The courts have also prohibited discriminatory accommodations in interstate travel; Washington has done away with the white-only policy in restaurants and theaters. Negroes have competitive on relief; they are no longer segregated in the South; the armed forces have gone a long way toward eliminating the racial separation which made a mockery of our democracy; today Negroes run for office in some parts of the South where not long ago they could not vote.

Is it mere coincidence that these changes have come about during a period when the U. S. and the Soviet Union were locked in a bitter struggle for ideological supremacy? Did it just happen that the darker-skinned peoples of the Americas have been pushed, just as in the case of the black man, just as in the case of the black man, just as in the case of the black man, to the back of the line when Washington was busy soothing support from the darker people of Asia and the Pacific? It seems that the Washington administration has moved to the dark without a thought about the implications of its policy.

I am thankful that these changes have been made, if only because I would be even more thankful if the powers that be had decided to start breaking the color barriers because it was the right thing to do instead of using them as a means of counteracting Communist propaganda.

No Greater Gift For Americans... We still have a long way to go. Racism is still strong. There are many fields in which discrimination is still practiced. It is time that we began to see the need for understanding and tolerance. It is time that we began to see the need for understanding and tolerance.
