Dear Members of the Board of Regents,

I am writing to express my hope that you will name the new Life Sciences Building at Manoa after Isabella Aiona Abbott, known to her friends and admirers as Izzy Abbott. Izzy was a role model and a colleague who understood there are different ways of knowing. She was never afraid to speak her mind but she also always had time for quiet conversations and for mentoring.

Thank you for considering this.

Sincerely,

David Duffy

I wish to voice my strong support for renaming LSB to the Isabella Aiona Abbott Life Sciences building. It is most fitting to have a UHM building named after the first woman of Hawaiian descent to receive a PhD in science.

Thank you,

Aloha e Randy,

I'm writing in support of the proposal to name UH Mānoa's new Life Sciences Building after the pioneering Native Hawaiian botanist Isabella Aiona Abbott.

Dr. Abbott had an outsized influence on marine botany and Native Hawaiian ethnobotany, and it's fitting that we celebrate her legacy. An undergraduate alumna of UH, she went on to receive her PhD from UC Berkeley—the first Native Hawaiian to receive a doctorate in the sciences. At Stanford and then at UH, she was a prolific researcher. She authored eight books and 150 plus scientific papers, and she discovered and named over 200 species of algae. For her teaching, mentorship, advocacy, and research, Dr. Abbott received numerous national and international accolades, including the Gilbert Morgan Smith medal from the National Academy of Sciences.

Although Dr. Abbott has been recognized as a Distinguished Alumni of UH and has two small scholarships established in her honor, we have done surprisingly little to recognize her importance to UH and Hawai'i generally. We have a good opportunity before us to name the new Life Sciences Building after her. As we strive to become a Native Hawaiian place of learning, altering our campus maps will play an important role. Christening Izzie Hall, therefore, will not just honor Dr. Abbott but will do honor to the University of Hawai'i as well. Mahalo for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Robert Perkinson

Aloha, e nā Kuhina me ka Pelekikena o ke Kulanui,

Please allow me to add my voice of strong support for the proposal to name the Life Sciences Building in honor of Dr. Isabella K. Abbott, a scholar recognized around the world for her singular achievements, and esteemed here in her homeland for her 'ōpū ali'i - her noble and caring nature.

I was never a student of Izzie's, but was fortunate to have worked with her for decades on a constellation of projects, all linked by threads of Hawaiian knowledge, science, and Hawaiian language. I cannot think of a more appropriate person to be memorialized, in perpetuity, by having an important building on campus named in her honor. Dear Mr. Moore,

We are writing in support of the student campaign to name UH. Mānoa's Life Sciences building after Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott. Dr. Abbott pioneered the study of Hawaiian limu, describing over 200 new species from the Hawaiian islands. She was the first Native Hawaiian woman to receive a PhD in science, and the first woman to be hired as a full professor at the department of Biological Sciences at Stanford University. She had an enormous influence on the study of Hawaiian algae and the field of ethnobotany, mentoring hundreds of students in her time at UH. The author of over 150 scientific publications and 8 books, Dr. Abbott was a one-of-a-kind scientist who revolutionized the study of Hawaiian seaweeds and their place in Hawaiian culture and community.

As a Native Hawaiian place of learning, the University of Hawai'i must acknowledge Indigenous scholars who have made a lasting contribution here, in this case to science and conservation. Naming the Life Sciences building after Dr. Abbott not only honors her life and legacy, but will also send a message to students from minority backgrounds to see the University as a place that serves and supports them. The most recent UH System Strategic Plan 2023-2029 identifies "fulfilling kuleana to Hawaiians and Hawai'i" as its top imperative, putting forward its goal to model what it means to be an Indigenous-centered and Indigenous-serving institution. This involves creating "opportunities for all UH students, faculty, staff, executives and regents to inform their work by learning about Hawaiian language, culture, knowledge, and the past and present impacts of colonization." This must be accomplished through thoughtful and dedicated actions, and honoring Dr. Abbott's life is one way to model these types of actions.

Yours sincerely,

16 January 2022

Mr. Randolph Moore, Chair
University of Hawai'i Board of Regents

Aloha Mr. Moore and BOR:

I submit this testimony of support for renaming the UH Mānoa Life Sciences Building after Professor Isabella Kauakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott (1919-2010), whom I met shortly after joining the university in 1995. Most people likely know that Dr. Abbott was the first Native Hawaiian woman to earn a PhD in science (Botany, 1950, University of California, Berkeley) and the first female and first minority professor in Stanford University's Biology department before retiring from Stanford to join the UHM Botany program in 1982. She was one of the Pacific world's preeminent marine botanists (phycology, algae), both in California and also in Hawai'i and its environs. It is for these reasons that she was awarded the Gilbert Morgan Smith Medal by the National Academy of Sciences in 1997, and invited to name a National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) research ship, which she called the Hi-ialakai. She published more than 150 research papers and eight books on marine algae.

Still others –scientists, students, and the public – know her as the author of La'au Hawai'i: Traditional Hawaiian Uses of Plants: an ethnobotany of Hawaiian plant use that, she noted, was made possible through her tutelage by her Hawaiian mother in Hana, Maui. No one disputes that Professor Abbott is a "living treasure of Hawaii," an honor that the Honpa Hongwanji Mission of Hawaii gave her in 2005. But I write this letter of support from far outside the field – as an anthropological archaeologist – because I was fortunate enough for Isabella Abbott to adopt me into her world when I came to Hawai'i. She was Izzie to me and myriad close friends including some, but not all, former students and phycologist colleagues, and a marvelous connector and hostess. She made time to listen to, and dine with, guests from all walks of life. During our innumerable meals with Izzie, my husband and I met many dozens of people from across Hawai'i and the science world who shared a love for Izzie and, usually, for the ocean. Izzie described herself as a tough teacher: an assessment that few students would dispute! She was, however, also a fiercely dedicated advisor. Izzie Abbott taught me to be a nurturant and encouraging advisor to my students without sacrificing my scholarly standards. She also taught me a kind of love that, one can have for those one has mentored, and that service is intrinsic to a meaningful academic career.

Izzie Abbott was everything that others likely describe in their testimonies: dedicated, accomplished, and a real treasure: but to me and my husband, Izzie was also our 'ohana here at UHM. I am sure that I am not alone in recognizing that – besides her scholarship, her leadership, and her vision – Izzie was a most wonderful human being. Naming the Life Sciences Building after her not only recognizes her accomplishments, but provides a model for the next generation of students across the sciences.

Sincerely,

Miriam Stark, Ph.D.

Mr Randall Moore, Chair

Aloha Mr Moore and the BOR,

It is my sincere pleasure to submit this testimony with the many other letter writers, student petitions and social media presence, asking for your support in naming the new School of Life Sciences building at Mānoa after my friend, mentor and colleague, Dr. Isabella Ka'uakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott.

This letter could take many approaches in trying to make the case that Dr. Abbott is the best person for whom this building could be named. For instance, Izzie was twice recognized as a Distinguished Alumna of University of Hawai'i at Mānoa! Declared a Living Treasure, she was a proud graduate of Kamehemeha Schools, a true Keiki o ka 'Āina, and born in Hāna, Maui.

Dr. Abbott graduated from Mānoa in 1940 as a Botany undergraduate, then thrived in mainland graduate programs, training with leading scientists of marine botany: William Randolph Taylor of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor for her MS followed by enrollment in the Graduate Program in Botany, at the University of California at Berkeley for her PhD, which was awarded in 1950.

Her scholarly accomplishments built directly on the Botany training that started at Mānoa and includes core contributions to marine botany where she remains as the recognized authority - first author or sole author of FOUR books that are the 'bible' for species identification for cold water California algae as well as a lasting legacy of warm-water species 'bibles' for red, green and brown algae for Hawaii and the Central Pacific. Interestingly, her early skills in writing and editing were honed as a undergrad reporter for KaLeo, skills she later used to publish over 150 scientific papers.

In my view however, the contributions she made upon her return to Mānoa as the Wilder Professor in Botany make the strongest case for her legacy lasting well into the future, and in our community. Her legacy from her early contributions to the Ka'u report can be seen as the basis for our Hawaiian Place of Learning; her focused efforts to nurture Hawaiian undergraduates in Science can be tied to the 1500 students in 10 years of Bot 105 where she taught using place-based strategies as she told the stories of her childhood, her Ka'ilihou family traditions and their uses of plants; her nurturing marine botany and ethnobotany graduate students almost all of whom are now in leadership positions in the State of Hawai'i, the Federal Government and our University of Hawai'i campuses. She mentored faculty; she spoke up for the community; she did everything she could to be that role model of a modern Hawaiian leader, respectful of her culture and fascinated by her science, especially the Hawaiian endemic algae she scientifically described, and called the ‘first Hawaiians‘.

The best way to sustain that gift of her legacy is to inspire all Mānoa life-science students to take classes and have laboratories in a building named to honor Dr. Isabella Ka‘uakea Aiona Abbott, a welcoming presence for the future of science in our culture.

As one voice for the many the people she touched, I ask for your support.

Re: Naming the Life Sciences Building after Isabella Aiona Abbott

Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott, native Hawaiian and daughter of a Chinese immigrant, devoted her life to advancing knowledge of Hawaiian use of native plants as food and medicine and, especially, the limu -- marine algae -- of Hawaii. As a doctoral student of Dr. Abbott's husband, Donald P. Abbott, at Stanford University, I gained Izzie's friendship 60 years ago. I knew her as someone proud of her education at Kamehameha Schools and the University of Hawai'i. While living in California for many years, she returned to Hawai'i regularly to study marine algae here.

I joined the UH faculty as an assistant professor in 1968, and the Abbotts often stayed with me in my small Kaimuki rental cottage when they visited. These were good times as we discussed their times as students at UH and their dedication to the University's students, especially their training in things Hawaiian. When Izzie became a part-time faculty member at UH, before Don's Stanford retirement, she began teaching the ethnobotany class and soon gained campus fame for the course.

Isabella Aiona Abbott was, first and foremost, an Hawaiian scholar. She gained fame in her field first for her publications on the marine algae of California. She was hired at Stanford as a full Professor of Biological Sciences after serving for many years in an adjunct capacity, being paid only for the summer session courses in marine botany that she taught at Stanford's Hopkins Marine Station. Once established at UH, Dr. Abbott's focus was entirely on Hawai'i, on its ethnobotany and its algae. She was surely THE pioneer for Hawaiian women in science. It is totally fitting that the new Life Sciences Building on the UH Manoa Campus bear the name of this remarkable woman.

The era of 'selling' building names to wealthy donors is surely past, and we can return to the era when the University of Hawai'i recognized its outstanding scholars by putting their names on campus structures. Seeing "Isabella Aiona Abbott Hall" on the front of the Life Sciences Building would be a fitting tribute to an outstanding Hawaiian woman scientist and an inspiration to students at UH. Please, Board of Regents, approve this naming.

Aloha,
Michael G. Hadfield

SENATE RESOLUTION 04-23

Renaming UH Mānoa's Life Sciences Building after Isabella Kauakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott

BE IT ENACTED BY THE UNDERGRADUATE SENATE:

- WHEREAS,* Isabella “Izzie” Kauakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott was born in Hāna, Maui to Chinese and Hawaiian parents, and;
- WHEREAS,* Abbot’s pastime activities consisted of searching for limu on the Lahaina Shores with her mother, and;
- WHEREAS,* Abbott was the first woman biology professor of color at Stanford University, then became the first Native Hawaiian woman to earn her doctorates in science at 31 years old. After teaching at Stanford University for 22 years, Abbott pursued teaching botany at the University of Hawai’i at Mānoa¹, and established the first ethnobotany undergraduate program.
- WHEREAS,* Heavily relying on the oral histories told by kupunas about reintroducing seaweeds and cultivating limu, Abbott spread traditional Hawaiian marine life knowledge, and
- WHEREAS,* Publishing over 150 texts in the marine biology field, Abbott also received accolades throughout her career, such as the Darbaker Prize and Lifetime Achievement Award. Abbot discovered more than 200 algae species which were named after her, including a genus of the red algae family called Abbotella (Little Abbott).²
- WHEREAS,* Despite Abbott’s passing at 91 years old in 2010, her legacy inspires younger generations to pursue the biological sciences, and;

²<https://maui.hawaii.edu/hooulu/2019/03/14/a-celebration-of-womens-history-and-dr-isabella-aiona-abbott/>

BE IT RESOLVED, The School of Life Sciences is an integral part of the College of Natural Sciences, preparing students for various careers in medicine, research, conservation, and technology, and;

BE IT RESOLVED, Currently, 5 out of 125 buildings are named after Native Hawaiians meanwhile two are named after Native Hawaiian women.

BE IT RESOLVED, The University of Hawai'i at Mānoa should stand more committed to being a Native Hawaiian Place of Learning by reflecting its spaces to honor Native Hawaiian scholars and figures.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, ASUH stands firm that the University needs to do more to serve the Native Hawaiian community, especially women from underrepresented demographics. ASUH firmly believes in renaming the Life Sciences Building to honor Isabella "Izzie" Kauakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott.

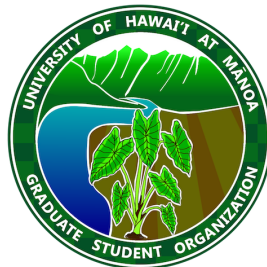

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED, that copies of this resolution shall be sent to:

the University of Hawai'i Board of Regents Chair Randolph Moore and Members, President David Lassner, Provost Michael Bruno, Vice Provost for Students Success Lori Ideta, the Graduate Student Organization, Office of the Vice Provost for Academic Excellence, Campus Climate Committee, School of Life Sciences Interim Dean Alison Sherwood, Honolulu Civil Beat, Commission on the Status of Women, Botanical Society of America Executive Director Heather Cacanindin, Hawaii's Congressional Delegation, Stanford University's Associate Vice President for Community Engagement Megan Swezey Fogarty, Hawai'i Public Radio Community Advisory Board chair Kelsie Aguilera, and Ka Leo O Hawai'i.

Office of the Dean

17 January 2023

Aloha President Lassner and Regents,

We are writing today to express our unified, strong support for the re-naming of the Life Sciences Building on the UHM campus in honor of Dr. Isabella Ka'uakea Aiona Abbott. Others have outlined the myriad scientific accomplishments of Dr. Abbott which, taken alone, would more than suffice in providing strong rationale for this honorific. We believe the time is right for UH to embrace this tide of support, which would acknowledge the legacy of one of our University's most notable scientists – a Native Hawaiian woman scientist, who had (and continues to have) an outsized impact on her field. One of us (Sherwood) had the honor of working with Dr. Abbott directly during the final decade of her career, benefitting first-hand from her extraordinary knowledge and guidance, but also witnessing the scores of students, colleagues, and researchers who worked closely with her, and in many cases, traveling from far-away regions of the globe to collaborate.

The Mānoa 2025 strategic plan for UHM places “Becoming a Native Hawaiian Place of Learning” as one of the central goals of our campus. Renaming the Life Sciences Building in honor of Dr. Abbott is in perfect alignment with this initiative. The impact of this act would be immediate and far-reaching, inspiring the thousands of students who participate in classes held in the building, as well as faculty and staff on campus. Put simply, we believe renaming the Life Sciences Building on the UHM campus in honor of Dr. Isabella Ka'uakea Aiona Abbott to be the right thing to do, and we enthusiastically add our support to this initiative.

To the Board of Regents,

A group of my fellow classmates will be presenting about our campaign in this weeks meeting to change the name of the Life Sciences building to Isabella Abbott Hall. I wanted ot provide the signatures that we have gathered in support of this change from the past couple of months of campaigning. I am happy to provide any more information you may need!

We look forward to meeting with you

Katie Baker

Testimony in Support of Isabella Aiona Abbott Hall

Dear members of the University of Hawai'i Board of Regents,

As a Hawaiian and a seaweed biogeochemist currently at Hokkaido University, I can testify that Dr. Abbott's impact is well renowned across the globe. She is a truly inspirational model for Hawaiians, phycologists, and scientists broadly, and her legacy certainly deserves to be perpetuated to the highest degree possible at home at the University of Hawai'i.

As a Hawaiian and a scientist, I support renaming the Life Sciences Building to Isabella Abbott Hall. This is one small but impactful step toward UH becoming a Place By and For Hawaiians.

Me ke aloha,

Kalani Carlson

Dear members of the University of Hawai'i Board of Regents,

I graduated in 2015 with a master's degree in botany in the ethnobotany track at UH. Considering Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott's renown as an expert in limu and Hawaiian ethnobotany, it is hard to overstate her influence on the discipline that I love. She was truly a remarkable scholar. She was the first kanaka maoli woman to receive a PhD in science. She was also be all accounts a compassionate and engaged professor. I recall watching an interview with her recorded by the UH Maui College's "Preserving Our Recollections" oral history project. In spite of her many accolades, she appears to have remained humble and grounded.

Dr. Abbott also holds a special place as a groundbreaking Native Hawaiian scholar who both began and ended her career at the University of Hawai'i. She was:

A graduate of the University of Hawai'i (B.S. Botany, 1941) who became the first wahine Kanaka Maoli to receive a PhD in science (UC Berkeley, 1950);

The first Native Hawaiian faculty member at Stanford University (1960), and the first woman and person of color to be promoted to full professor in the department of Biology at Stanford University (1972);

The University of Hawai'i G. Wilder Professor of Botany for 30 years (1980-2010), during which time she helped to establish the ethnobotany program.

It seems obvious to me that the life sciences building at UH should be named after her. Please consider naming the building after her as an acknowledgement of her many intellectual contributions.

Me ke Aloha,

Dr. Tamara Luthy

To whom it may concern,

Here I have attached the 2,500 signatures for renaming the Life Sciences building in Dr. Abbott's honor. I request that these signatures be made available to the regents before they vote on the resolution.

Thank you for your time.

Dear members of the University of Hawai'i Board of Regents,

I write to express my support for renaming the Life Sciences Building to Isabella Abbott Hall to honor the extensive accomplishments of Dr. Isabella Kauakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott.

As an incoming Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa and a Native Hawaiian scientist, I recognize the critical importance of uplifting Native Hawaiian scholarship for future generations of Hawai'i students. At present, fewer than 4% of buildings at UH Mānoa are named after Kānaka Maoli. In renaming the Life Sciences Building, UH has the opportunity to begin to change this legacy and move towards being a Hawaiian Place of Learning that has numerous learning spaces on campus that are named in honor of impactful Hawaiians.

Dr. Abbott is one such impactful Hawaiian, with an enduring legacy that has shaped both Hawaiian scientific scholarship and conservation today. Her contributions to science and to Hawai'i are too numerous to list here in full, but Dr. Abbott is fondly remembered as the "first lady of limu" for her contributions to the study and perpetuation of this important Hawaiian fauna, with hundreds of scholarly publications and specimen descriptions to her name. Dr. Abbott also holds a special place as a groundbreaking Native Hawaiian scholar who both began and ended her career at the University of Hawai'i. She was a UH graduate who became the first wahine Kanaka Maoli to receive a PhD in science. Following a long career as the first Native Hawaiian, woman, and person of color to be Professor of Biology Stanford University, she served as the University of Hawai'i G. Wilder Professor of Botany for 30 years, during which time she helped to establish the ethnobotany program. In addition to these academic accomplishments, Dr. Abbott was recognized for her invaluable contributions to both the field of marine botany and the people of Hawai'i. She was awarded local and national highest honors and lifetime achievement awards by scientific and honor societies, which included recognition as a "living treasure" by the Honpa Hongwanji mission.

I can say with certainty that my career as a Native Hawaiian marine conservation scientist would have been much more difficult were it not for the invaluable contributions of Dr. Abbott. While university spaces can be a lonely place for Native Hawaiians and other Indigenous peoples, scholars like Dr. Abbott remind us that we belong in these spaces and that our contributions help to uplift our community, both inside the university and out.

Designating the Life Sciences Building as Isabella Abbott Hall would reaffirm UH's commitment to Native Hawaiian scholarship and ensure that Dr. Abbott's legacy reaches future generations of Hawai'i students. Mahalo for this opportunity to testify.

Me ke aloha pumehana,

Dr. Sara Kahanamoku

Honolulu, Hawai'i 96822

Aloha Dr. Lassner,

I fully support the renaming the new Life Sciences building at UH Mānoa in honor of the pioneering Native Hawaiian marine botanist, Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott.

Dr. Abbott paved the way for Native Hawaiian scientists by being the first in many trail-blazing accomplishments. She was the first Hawaiian to receive a PhD in science at UC Berkeley, the first minority woman full professor at Stanford, and the first woman to hold the Wilder Endowed Chair in Botany at UH Mānoa. She authored eight books (many published in 'Olelo Hawai'i) and over 150 scientific papers, and she discovered and named over 200 species of limu (marine algae). For her outstanding teaching and research, Dr. Abbott received numerous national and international accolades, including the Gilbert Morgan Smith Medal from the National Academy of Sciences.

Her love of scientific research and mentoring never stopped. Dr. Abbott returned to Hawai'i from Stanford to continue teaching and investigating Hawaiian limu. All the while, she was a fantastic mentor for local students, whom she encouraged with aloha. As a postdoc at UHM in the late 1970s, I worked in the same lab as Dr. Abbott, who generously and graciously helped my collaborator and me with difficult algal identifications.

Many have recognized Isabella Aiona Abbott as an influential figure who effectively fostered both traditional and western science in the Native Hawaiian community. Although Dr. Abbott will be honored on one of the new U.S. mint quarter designs, she has not received widespread honors from her native campus. We now have the excellent opportunity to name the new Life Sciences building after her. As we strive to become a Native Hawaiian place of learning, modifying our campus maps will play an important role. Naming this building after Dr. Abbott will honor not only her, but also the entire University of Hawai'i 'ohana.

Mahalo for your consideration,

Mark Hixon

Aloha.

With apologies for any confusion, I am attaching a few letters of support for the resolution to rename UHM's Life Sciences Building after Isabella Aiona Abbott. You may have received one or two of these directly from the author(s), but since the clock is ticking, I wanted to make sure you have everything in hand as you put together materials.

Many thanks, and please let me know if you're missing anything.

Warm wishes, Robert

President David Lassner and University of Hawai'i at Mānoa Board of Regents

The Black Student Association (BSA) at the University of Hawai'i at Manoa (UHM) submits this letter of support for the Life Sciences building to be named after Dr. Isabella Abbott. Dr. Abbott's accomplishments include becoming the first Native Hawaiian woman to teach botany at Stanford University and creating the Ethnobotany Department at UHM. Dr. Abbott was considered the first woman to involve Limu (delicacy to Hawaii) into botany. She's acknowledged as "The First Lady of Limu" for involving her culture into her works. Other notable accomplishments include being known as "The First Lady of Limu". Dr. Abbott's numerous awards, published academic books, and research papers demonstrate that the Life Sciences building should be renamed in her honor. Dr. Abbott's numerous academic accolades coupled with her love for her culture and home make her a role model for Native Hawaiian people and women of color in science. Renaming the Life Sciences building in her honor is an important step in ensuring that the University of Hawai'i system fulfills its mission to become a Hawaiian place of learning.

Dr. Abbott's story is similar to the first African American woman to earn her master's degree in Chemistry from the University of Hawai'i, Alice Ball. Alice Ball's creation of the "Ball Method" to cure Hanson's disease was hidden for quite sometime, and was wrongly claimed by another chemist, Arthur Dean. Alice Ball's and Dr. Abbott's stories are like countless women of color whose contributions remain hidden within the academic canon, are disregarded, misinterpreted, or worse, attributed to someone else. As a university community, we have a responsibility to elevate the work of Black, Indigenous, and other people of color in our classrooms, but also in the naming of academic buildings. Renaming the Life Science's building after Dr. Abbott helps to remedy the erasure of Native Hawaiian women's contributions in STEM fields. Not only that, but renaming the Life Sciences building after Dr. Abbott will provide women of color in science with a positive role model.

As a Black student-led organization we know firsthand the impact that the lack of representation has on underrepresented students. When you don't have representation, students of color start to doubt themselves, which contributes to a lack of sense of belonging. Changing the name of the Life Science building would pave a future for more women of color on campus. We urge you to knock down old traditions and create new and improved traditions to represent women of color on campus. BSA's believes that women of color, and similarly marginalized groups, are valued and are the future.

Sincerely,
The UHM Black Student Association

Dear President Lassner,

As one of the many people who was strongly influenced by Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott, I would like to share with you her impact on me as a young faculty member joining the Department of Botany. Izzie was the first person I met when I first arrived in Hawai'i. Since then, her grace and kindness were overflowing and after my hire at UH we became colleagues with my office next to hers. We spoke regularly and often, and she was a great influence on my career development.

I soon became aware of how her message of love for the 'aina and care for others was pervasive. As I became more involved in conservation issues, she commented how the endangered plants that we studied were the "first Hawaiians" to reach these shores and, as such, it is our duty to take care of them.

We could discuss for many hours the tremendous contributions that Izzie made in her studies of marine algae. What I think is often lost is her keen interest in modern technologies. Although these came along too late in her career to take full advantage of them, she realized the tremendous power that they gave for understanding the relationships among species and genera of plants (marine or terrestrial). It was entirely through her efforts that the Department of Botany was able to procure a DNA sequencer (before sequencing centers were available) for the ongoing research by several of our faculty and their graduate students. She spent a great deal of time speaking with funding agencies and convincing them of the important contributions that could be made with this equipment. The result was her obtaining an award of approximately $100K for this modern technology.

The opportunity to have the Life Sciences Building named for Dr. Abbott would not only be a great tribute to a wonderful woman, but would be a fitting honor bestowed on a building where tremendous science and technical advances are taking place. The work being carried out in the building extends into many branches of science that she would have been a strong proponent for their continued support.

As we move forward with our campus' efforts of establishing a Hawaiian place of learning, having the Life Science Building named in honor of Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott, the first Hawaiian to obtain a PhD degree followed with the incredibly productive career that she had, would be a fitting honor to recognize her contribution to the University of Hawai'i and the people of Hawai'i nei.

Dear Dr Lassner,

We are writing in support of the student campaign to name UH. Mānoa's Life Sciences building after Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott. Dr. Abbott pioneered the study of Hawaiian limu, describing over 200 new species from the Hawaiian islands. She was the first Native Hawaiian woman to receive a PhD in science, and the first woman to be hired as a full professor at the department of Biological Sciences at Stanford University. She had an enormous influence on the study of Hawaiian algae and the field of ethnobotany, mentoring hundreds of students in her time at UH. The author of over 150 scientific publications and 8 books, Dr. Abbott was a one-of-a-kind scientist who revolutionized the study of Hawaiian seaweeds and their place in Hawaiian culture and community.

As a Native Hawaiian place of learning, the University of Hawai'i must acknowledge Indigenous scholars who have made a lasting contribution here, in this case to science and conservation. Naming the Life Sciences building after Dr. Abbott not only honors her life and legacy, but will also send a message to students from minority backgrounds to see the University as a place that serves and supports them. The most recent UH System Strategic Plan 2023-2029 identifies "fulfilling kuleana to Hawaiians and Hawai'i" as its top imperative, putting forward its goal to model what it means to be an Indigenous-centered and Indigenous-serving institution. This involves creating "opportunities for all UH students, faculty, staff, executives and regents to inform their work by learning about Hawaiian language, culture, knowledge, and the past and present impacts of colonization." This must be accomplished through thoughtful and dedicated actions, and honoring Dr. Abbott's life - especially in 2022, the Year of the Limu - is one way to model these types of actions.

Yours sincerely,

MĀNOA

Welina me ke aloha,

Please accept this letter as an expression of unwavering support for the student-led initiative advocating for the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa (UHM) to rename the Life Sciences Building to Isabella Aiona Abbott Hall. Currently, I am an instructor and PhD student, coming up on a decade-long relationship with the university that began when I enrolled as an undergraduate student. As a member of the university community, I have come to understand the crucial role names play in the collective memory of larger society, and am familiar with the way building names on our campus contribute to people's perception of our place and its values. Integrating the legacy of Isabella Aiona Abbott, PhD into our campus landscape will 1) uplift Dr. Abbott as a Native Hawaiian woman and scientist; and 2) align directly with UHM's vision and strategic goal of being a "Native Hawaiian place of learning."

Names are an important part of the identity of our campus. Building names in particular often uplift influential figures from our history: former deans, administrators, faculty, members of governing boards, and executives who made significant impacts become integrated into the geographical landscape of the campus. They appear in the language of thousands of members of the university community everyday, and are monuments that express both the values of the university and the selective lens on the past. The influential individuals honored through the names of campus buildings come to shape an understanding of the present.

Dr. Abbott full and well deserves to be uplifted and recognized in this way. The first Native Hawaiian to receive a PhD in science, Dr. Abbott was an influential scientist, author, and educator, renowned for her studies of ocean plants and Hawaiian ethnobotany. She wrote eight books that continue to serve as foundational texts in botany, ethnobotany and marine science, and authored more than 150 articles. Dr. Abbott was one of the foremost authorities on limu (seaweed) in the world, winning her the accolade "First Lady of Limu", and was also considered the foremost expert on central-Pacific algae. Not only was she renowned for her scientific prowess, she also successfully achieved many 'firsts' as both a woman and ethnic minority in her time. As mentioned, she is the first Native Hawaiian to receive a PhD in science. At a time when academic jobs for female PhDs were extremely rare, she began as a lecturer at Hopkins. Later, she became the first female full professor in Stanford's biology department. Due to her exceptional record, she bypassed the normal tenure track to become the first minority full professor in 1972. In 1977, the National Academy of Sciences honored Abbott with its Gilbert Morgan Smith Medal, the highest award in marine botany. In her retirement, she returned to teach ethnobotany here at UHM, and is credited with creating the undergraduate degree in the subject¹. By gracing a campus building with her name, we integrate into our campus landscape her incredible accomplishments.

UHM is no stranger to student-led efforts in renaming important landmarks on campus. Present-day Saunders Hall was a site of tension and protest in the 1970's through the 1990's, when student groups led the charge to withdraw its former name, Porteus Hall. The building originally was named in honor of Stanley Porteus, a former psychology professor who published violently racist and sexist content for decades and was criticized for his ideas by leading scientists of his time². More recently, UHM's Graduate Student Organization and other student groups are advocating to return Dole Street to its original Hawaiian name, Kapa'akea Street. The transplantation of the foreign surname Dole onto the landscape symbolizes the American oppression of Native Hawaiians, since it recognizes Sanford B. Dole, who played a significant role in the unlawful overthrow of Queen Liliuokalani and illegal annexation of the Hawaiian Kingdom by the US. The return of the name Kapa'akea would honor the area's Native Hawaiian history, in honor of Caesar Kapa'akea, father of King Kalākaua and Queen Lili'uokalani³. Students have voiced their demands for change for decades, and make up an important part in the genealogy of student involvement on campus issues.

Renaming the Life Sciences Building to honor Dr. Abbott is another generation of students voicing their demands for change. It also aligns directly with UHM's commitment to being a Native Hawaiian place of learning. The term "Native Hawaiian place of learning" first appeared in relation to UH two decades ago, and is a term reiterated in all levels of the university. The term is listed in UH Mānoa's strategic plan 36 times; the first time it appears (other than the table of contents) is in the vision statement, and the first strategic goal listed in the strategic plan is "Becoming a Native Hawaiian Place of Learning." A basic definition of a Native Hawaiian place of learning is an environment that "is responsive to the needs and assets of Native Hawaiian communities, and is reflective of Indigenous Hawai'i"⁴. One crucial aspect of being a Native Hawaiian place of learning is normalizing Hawaiian language, names, and influential historical figures on our campus. Currently, only five out of 125 buildings on the UHM campus are named after Native Hawaiians; two of those are named after Native Hawaiian women. As an acclaimed Native Hawaiian scientist, Dr. Abbott overcame sexism and racism to achieve her lifelong commitment to be an educator and make a difference in the next generation of learners interested in marine biology and ethnobotany. Her legacy will resonate with university community members as one of steadfast resilience, and dedication to science and knowledge. She represents the unyielding spirit of scholarship, and its intersection with culture, community, and public service. She made major contributions to the scientific community in the face of insurmountable resistance, and represents inclusiveness and intellectual rigor that will serve as a welcome for the type of learners UHM will be proud to have walk through her hall.

Now is the time for bold, visionary leadership. Renaming the Life Sciences Building to honor Dr. Abbot is the right thing to do for our students and the larger UHM community, and is a chance to highlight Dr. Abbott as an extraordinary role model and affirm our collective commitment to foster a Native Hawaiian place of learning. Not only is this effort led by students, it is met with widespread support and acclaim among faculty, staff, undergraduate and graduate students, alumni, and members from larger science, conservation, and cultural communities in Hawai'i. A circulating petition currently has nearly 2,500 signatures, and is growing everyday. It is imperative for UHM to take action in this historic change.

Mahalo a nui in advance for your serious and timely consideration of this request. I am more than happy to provide any further resources in support of this important initiative.

Aloha Dr. Lassner,

I'm writing in support of the student campaign to name UH Mānoa's new Life Sciences Building after the pioneering Native Hawaiian Botanist Isabella Aiona Abbott.

I would like to write this letter of support on a more personal level rather than emphasizing Dr. Abbott's contributions to marine botany and Hawaiian ethnobotany, which is as you by now know is quite extensive. In most and maybe all of the other letters you have received concerning Dr. Abbott's legacy, were about the great achievements that she had made in marine algae.

I have very fond memories of Dr. Abbott. (Izzie) I had the office across the hall from Izzie, in the St. John Plant Science Building, and way back in 1982, the phone system was still on a party line. So that all of our calls to the both of us came through one number and we got to know each other very well because of this arrangement. We were in constant contact taking messages for each other from incoming phone calls or buzzing each other that there was a call for one of us. I got to know Izzie very well over the years. When I first came to Hawai'i, I did not know anybody here. So, Izzie frequently invited me to dinner where I met various friends and colleagues of hers and Don Abbott, her husband, who retired from Stanford at that time in 1982. I was not the only one that she did this for. She did this for others members of the University of Hawai'i community that were new to Hawai'i. During the many evenings of dinner with Izzie and Don, I heard many stories about their life from so many years ago. Some of the stories were difficult to listen to because of the hardship she had to endure, not only professionally, but also because of the era in which she came of age in the United States. Some things were shocking. Obviously, I cannot go over all of them, but some were quite eye-opening. One evening I asked Don about why he was not with Izzie while she was working on her M.S. at the University of Michigan. He simply told me that it would have been “unwised” to do so since mixed marriages was illegal in many parts of the United States at that time! Also, despite the fact that she retired as a full professor from Stanford, it would be many years before Stanford would reward her for her many contributions. Izzie and Don received their Ph.D. at the University of California, Berkeley in 1950. While Don was able to get a position at the Hopkins Marine State (the marine field station for Stanford University). Izzie, was, not unexpectedly, never considered for a job. Not because she was a woman of color, but just because she was a woman. It was difficult for any woman to obtain an academic position at this time. Instead, a great deal of her time would be spent raising their daughter Annie. However, even while raising a daughter, she did research and published without any compensation. It would not be until 1966 that she would become a research associate and taught as a lecturer at Hopkins. It was also in 1966 that she and George Hollenberg would be authors of the supplement to the 2nd edition of Marine Algae of the Monterey Peninsula. The first edition was published in 1944 with Gilbert Smith as the only author. However, by the 1960s, it was hopelessly out of date, but still remained one of the outstanding reference for marine algae of the Monterey Peninsula. The supplement was a much needed addition. In 1976 Izzie and Hollenberg would publish Marine Algae of California. Izzie was first author! This would be the Bible for marine algae of California. By the 1970s, she would receive numerous honors, with many noting that she was the first woman of color to achieve these awards. By 1972, Stanford had realized her many achievements and that she had not been rewarded for the many contributions she had made in her research on algae that were carried out as member of the Stanford community. So, during 1972, Stanford promoted her directly to Full Professor of Biology! These were only several of the achievements she earned despite the discrimination that she had to endure not only because she was a woman, but a woman of color. However, she overcame all of those problems to become what many in the algal community would affectionately refer to her as "The Queen of Limu."

As someone that had the office across the hall from Izzie, it was amazing to me that even after retiring from Stanford in 1982, she worked like an assistant professor trying to obtain tenure. I would still see her every day, including weekends carrying out her research with algae, working with graduate students and expanding her research to include Ethnobotany as well. Years later, she would again retire, this time from the University of Hawai'i, Mānoa sometime in the late 1990s, I think. However, again, nothing changed. I still saw her everyday at work and on weekends. Still doing research and working with graduate students. I remember one day coming on campus and found that the power had gone out in the St. John Plant Science building. My office, as well as Izzie's was on the 6th.

floor and I had to walk up 6th flight of stairs, which can be challenging even when your young. When I got to the 6th. floor and walked by Izzie's office, she was already there working away in a hot building without air condition and somehow walked up 6th flight of stairs in order to work rather than turning around to go home when the power was out. Believe me that could not have been an easy task. I remember that day, it was so hot, she passed out for a while from the heat. I got a fan and let it blow on her and she came out of rather quickly and continued to work afte. To be honest, I felt like calling an ambulance, but she was fine. I was frankly amazed that she was able to do that. In reminiscing about some of what I just wrote about Izzie, it is easy to understand how she was able to accomplish so much in her life, overcoming society's discriminatory practices with her "can-do attitude" and hard work.

I know that I originally wrote that I was going to write only about my knowledge of her from at a personal level, but it not easy to separate some of the personal stories from her achievements and also not to ramble on, in some cases, as I did, since it involved the difficulties she had to overcome in order to accomplish many of those achievements. Also, I just wanted to tell how she took a stranger into her home and made him feel like family.

Sincerely,

George Wong

Dear members of the University of Hawai'i Board of Regents,

I first learned of Dr. Isabella Aiona Abbott in the 6th grade as an ethnobotany student of one of her proteges, Benton Kealii Pang (then a Botany grad student, now a FWS scientist). That 2 week immersive Nā Pua No'eau program run out of UH-Hilo was life changing, and I still have autographed copies of her Laau Hawaii book and limu booklet.

Many years later, I joined the UHM Botany department as a graduate student, expecting to be surrounded by numerous Hawaiian and kama'āina botany scholars. Instead, a handful of Hawaiian graduate students were graduating or drifting in the department, juggling off campus jobs. Dr. Abbott, emerita, was up on the 6th floor and I found her intimidating because of her legendary status. And despite the persistently leaking roof of St. John and the ridiculously not ADA compliant doorway that was a challenge even for me to open, Dr Abbott would be in the lab, day in and day out.

Dr. Abbott entered spaces that were neither kind nor supportive of Hawaiians or women and yet she established a career of excellence.

The university's recognition of her influence not just as a scholar but also role model is long overdue. It would perhaps also signal, even if mostly symbolically, UH's meaningful commitment to being a "Native Hawaiian Place of Learning." Because although I mostly remember Dr. Abbott sitting with microscope amidst buckets and plastic sheeting, seeing her name on a building would send a visible reminder to students of Hawaii that someone like them earned an undergraduate degree at UHM and went on to establish a career marked by rigor and excellence. With this in mind, perhaps they might aspire to become professional scientists knowing that their home institution recognizes the exceptional careers of people born, raised, and of these islands as well.

Mahalo for considering this testimony,

Abbott

This testimony in support of renaming the Life Sciences Building after Isabella Aiona Abbott is both professional and personal. When I served as interim dean of first the School of Hawaiian, Asian, and Pacific Studies and then as interim dean of the School of Pacific and Asian Studies, I worked with Dr. Abbott on a number of projects. Through conversations and many academic and social events, I came to appreciate this remarkable woman. Dr. Abbott possessed a tremendous amount of knowledge, not just about seaweeds and marine sciences, but about Hawaiian culture, medical plants and life in general. I watched her mentor both faculty and students, pushing and encouraging them to do their best for scientific research and Hawaii.

This testimony is also personal for Dr. Abbott also became a mentor for my son while he was still a student at Kamehameha. After graduating from Occidental College, he returned to Hawaii to complete his master's in marine biology under Dr. Abbott and Dr. Celia Smith. He, like so many of her students, was inspired to remain in Hawaii, bringing her vision and legacy to many others.

We have few buildings on campus named after leading native Hawaiian women educators. There is no more worthy representative both of our Hawaiian culture and Hawaiian leadership in the marine sciences than Isabella Aiona Abbott. Renaming the Life Sciences Building after Isabella Aiona Abbott honors Dr. Abbott's work and the University of Hawaii's dedication to Hawaiian culture.

Dear members of the University of Hawai'i Board of Regents,

I write to express my support for renaming the Life Sciences Building to Isabella Abbott Hall to honor the extensive accomplishments of Dr. Isabella Kauakea Yau Yung Aiona Abbott.

While the University of Hawai'i aims to be a Native Hawaiian place of learning, fewer than 4% of buildings at UH Mānoa are named after Kānaka Maoli. When the vast majority of the spaces in which students live, learn, and socialize are named after non-Hawaiians, the absence of Kānaka Maoli within these spaces is normalized. In renaming the Life Sciences Building, UH has the opportunity to begin to change this legacy and move towards being a Hawaiian Place of Learning that has numerous learning spaces on campus that are named in honor of impactful Hawaiians.

Dr. Abbott is one such impactful Hawaiian, with an enduring legacy that has shaped both Hawaiian scientific scholarship and conservation today. Dr. Abbott was the world's leading expert on Hawaiian seaweeds, with a corpus of work that includes eight books, over 150 papers, and over 200 descriptions of new species of limu. She is fondly remembered as the "first lady of limu" for her contributions to the study and perpetuation of this important Hawaiian fauna.

Dr. Abbott also holds a special place as a groundbreaking Native Hawaiian scholar who both began and ended her career at the University of Hawai'i. She was a graduate of the University of Hawai'i (B.S. Botany, 1941) who became the first wahine Kanaka Maoli to receive a PhD in science (UC Berkeley, 1950); the first Native Hawaiian faculty member at Stanford University (1960), and the first woman and person of color to be promoted to full professor in the department of Biology at Stanford University (1972); and the University of Hawai'i G. Wilder Professor of Botany for 30 years (1980-2010), during which time she helped to establish the ethnobotany program

In addition to these personal accomplishments, Dr. Abbott was recognized for her invaluable contributions to both the field of marine botany and the people of Hawai'i. Notably, she was awarded national and local highest honors, including: the Botanical Society of America Darbaker Prize (1969), the Kamehameha Schools Charles Reed Bishop Medal (1993), the National Academy of Sciences Gilbert Morgan Smith Medal (1997), and a lifetime achievement award from the Hawai'i Department of Land and Natural Resources (2008); recognized via appointments as: fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (1998), inductee of the Order of Ke Ali'i by Kamehameha Schools (2003), and UH Mānoa Distinguished Alumna (2011); and recognized as a "Living Treasure" by Honpa Hongwanji Mission of Hawai'i (2005).

Designating the Life Sciences Building as Isabella Abbott Hall would reaffirm UH's commitment to Native Hawaiian scholarship and ensure that Dr. Abbott's legacy reaches future generations of Hawai'i students. Mahalo for this opportunity to testify.
