

DIRECTOR OF ONLINE LEARNING

The Director of Online Learning is responsible for providing senior-level planning and direction of the University's online and distance learning programs, including all related institutional strategy and support for the ten-campus University system. As a direct report to the Vice President for Information Technology and Chief Information Officer, the Director of Online Learning formulates the institutional vision and strategies for online and distance delivery of instruction, and drives the implementation of policies, procedures and systems necessary to facilitate achieving the University's mission.

To meet the requirements of designing, developing, implementing and maintaining the core services for online and hybrid delivery of instruction and support for the statewide UH system, the Director of Online Learning works in collaboration with the most senior academic, student services, and technical leaders on all UH campuses and education centers on all islands. In addition, the class works with external partners including statewide and national educational colleagues and leaders, private sector technology officials, and national and international professional organizations.

The Director of Online Learning is responsible for directing the online, hybrid and distance learning programs, services and infrastructure within Information Technology Services, with responsibility for managing instructional designers and technologists, Learning Management System (LMS) application support staff, and support staff for online teachers and learners. Additionally, the class ensures that current enterprise systems fully support online and hybrid learners, that the technical infrastructure appropriately supports online learning programs, and that the online learning initiatives across the campuses support the UH vision for online learning.

At an advanced supervisory level, the Director of Online Learning is responsible for directing the personnel and activities of the Online Learning group of Information Technology Services.

The class Director of Online Learning is established effective _____.

Digitally signed by David Lassner
Date: 2022.04.01 23:58:04 -10'00'

President, University of Hawai'i

04/01/2022

Date