

On FEBRUARY 28

join us to understand and prevent violence against girls and women.

We will be screening two compelling shorts followed by a conversation with representatives from the PAU Violence Program and Women Center, National Organization for Women UH Manoa Branch, UHM's Men's Peer Group, shorts' filmmakers, and Girl Fest.

Screening Program Silent Years

After years of repression, a woman must journey back to her past and confront memories of teenage abuse while growing up on the Big Island of Hawai'i. Director: James Sereno (13 min.)

Not I

Awoken from a short nap, a man wakes only to discover the brutal reality of his dream is all too real. Director:Misa Tupou (6 min.)

is an initiative that uses film to promote social change. We organize a series of monthly meetings (please see calendar) where the screening of short films addressing compelling social issues is followed by a discussion with at least one community organization whose work relates to the issue presented.

This initiative seizes the frustration and powerlessness that as viewers of social documentaries we experience and transform those emotions into a momentum that leads to action once resources are aptly provided. We invite academics, activists and representatives of different communities to share with us their mission, actions and personal reflections on what can be done, here and now!

Led by the Filmmaking for Social Research Program Associate Director in collaboration with the University Student Of Urban and Regional Planning, Department of Urban & Regional Planning. Sponsored by the UH Student Activity and Program Fee Board
