

Human Trafficking in Asia and the Pacific Symposium

January 16, 2015 (Friday)
Center for Korean Studies Auditorium
1:00 – 4:30 pm Panel Presentations
4:30 – 5:00 pm Refreshments

Trafficking in persons is one of the fastest growing criminal activities in the world. Asia and the Pacific, including Hawai'i, have become hubs for this activity which in part is explained by rapid globalization and the resulting movement of labor. The symposium's panelists provide detailed presentations on case studies, illustrating the complexities of human trafficking and defying the tendency to universalize experiences. Cultural, economic, and historical contexts are factors to be considered, as well as state and federal laws and international protocols. The goal of the symposium is to examine different perspectives and questions on the topic to begin a conversation on the scope and range of the problems.

The U.S. State Department publishes an annual Trafficking in Persons Report rating 188 countries governments' compliance with the Trafficking Victims Protection Act's (TVPA) minimum standards. In the most recent report of June 2014, the TIP Report defined "trafficking in persons" and "human trafficking" as "umbrella terms for the act of recruiting, harboring, transporting, providing, or obtaining a person for compelled labor or commercial sex acts through the use of force, fraud, or coercion."¹
