Lissi Entre Ríos, the author’s daughter, and Joy Logan, UHM Professor of Spanish & LAIS, discuss El Sosneado, mi pueblo de antaño (2013). In this coming-of-age memoir, well-known folklore educator from Mendoza, Argentina, Antonio Entre Ríos, recalls his childhood in the 1930s and the life of the puesteros, small ranchers of the Andes. For Entre Ríos, the puesteros, who draw their sense of community through their relationship with nature and the land, represent the last heirs of the gaucho traditions.
