

Fall Writing Reboot Workshop:

Goal Setting, Accountability, and Weekly Writing Circles for Productive Scholarship

Fall 2021

It's time to reboot your writing routine for fall! In this workshop we will share inspiring practices to boost your writing effectiveness, offer a list of our favorite resources for you to start using right away, and introduce the power and importance of starting (or joining) weekly writing circles to keep you energized and motivated for a productive fall writing season.

If you have been procrastinating, or are just looking for a boost to keep you going strong, this workshop will help get you where you need to go.

PRESENTED BY

Miku Lenentine, PhD

Environmental Social Science and Affiliate Faculty, Center for Teaching Excellence

OFDAS Faculty Mentoring Program (FMP)

P 956-9567

fmp@hawaii.edu

www.fmp.hawaii.edu

Monday, October 25

12:30 pm–1:30 pm

Online Event

In this workshop we will:

- Present tried and true practices for cultivating effective writing habits
- Share a comprehensive list of our favorite resources
- Trade practical tips for productive writing
- Create a 5-week writing plan
- Identify your top barriers to writing and brainstorm solutions
- Discuss best practices for starting your own writing circle!
- Experience Q&A with participants of a successful writing circle

Participants who are ready to apply what they have learned right away are encouraged to sign up for the first Monday Motivator Writing Circle which will take place immediately following this workshop to put what you have learned into practice.

Register Online

www.fmp.edu/events.html

